War in Ireland
More War for Poland
The Widow's Fortune
International Police

An English Lord, important in British politics, said a few weeks ago, as he was sailing for Europe:

"Real war is coming in Ireland. The government will do what it can and then leave the North and South of Ireland, the Protestants and the Catholics, to fight it out in their own way. It will be a savage war."

The war predicted has begun, extra troops are going to Ireland, the killing has spread to hotels and private houses. Below the altar of a small church in Galway, on an improvised bier, without a coffin, lies the body of a priest, Father Griffin. Each from the bog in which he was buried, after being kidnaped and murdered, still clings to the skirts of his coat.

England does not need her troubles in Mesopotamia and elsewhere.—She has in Ireland a big enough problem for any empire.

Lithuania asks the League of Nations to make Poland peceful. Fifteen Polish divisions are attacking the Lithuanians now, according to the complaint.

It is not likely that relief for Lithuania will come from the League of Nations, but it may come from another direction.

Lenin and Trotzky, having settled Mr. Wrangel, making themselves rulers of all Russia, now turn their attention to Poland, announcing that the Poles can't keep all the land they took under a recent temporary agreement.

There will be more fighting there, and it will be the turn of Poland to apply to the league for protection.

Europe and Asia are a long ways from peace, and this country is fortunate to have escaped the responsibility fate almost fastened upon it.

General Pershing's pay is raised to $21,000, an increase of $7,500, to last as long as he remains head of the army.

General Pershing is now paid almost as well as a first class silk buyer in a large department store.

The silk buyer is not paid too much, important public servants are paid too little. The pay of elected officials is based on old days, when Washington was the richest man in America and the average citizen wondered how a Congressman could manage to spend as much as $5,000 a year.

The government cannot compete with the great industrial concerns, perhaps, but it can afford decent pay, especially for judges. If we paid the Federal judges what the English pay their judges, Federal salaries would be doubled and more.

After a worthless life, in which the solitary "achievement" was marrying a rich widow, a man died and left the widow's fifty millions to an obscure clerk not related to the dead man.

A relation of the dead man alleges or intimates most unpleasant conditions. Then comes the announcement that, after about five millions, the relative withdraws his suit, leaving forty-five millions to the unrelated clerk.

Wouldn't it be a good idea to amend the inheritance tax so as to put a tax of at least fifty per cent. on all money left to others than near relatives? A man who doesn't care to leave his money to his own kin might well be compelled to leave half of it to his own country that gave him protection —especially when he makes his fortune by marrying a widow.

Belgium proposes, what this writer and a hundred others proposed more than ten years ago, that Europe should organize a world military force of international police to stop fighting and compel arbitration wherever fighting breaks out.

EUROPE should supply, manage and pay for the international police of EUROPE, and this country should and WILL look after the policing of this continent under the limitations of the Monroe Doctrine.

Europe and America should have their separate international police forces, just as Chicago and New York have their separate municipal forces.

There is a difference between dates and mandates. Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express of London shows John Bull and Uncle Sam standing under the mandate tree. John Bull has swallowed his Mesopotamia mandate and is writhing in awful pain. The Armenian mandate intended for Uncle Sam is hanging high, untouched. John Bull, with a stomach-ache, says: "I ate a mandate." Uncle Sam, whom the English call Jonathan, says: "I am darned glad I didn't," and well he may.

John Bull's pain is caused by a dispatch from London saying that the amount of oil in Mesopotamia has been greatly exaggerated. It is a sad thing to swallow a Mesopotamian mandate, spend fifty or sixty million pounds teaching the natives how to govern themselves and die quickly, only to find that the oil is scarce.

Mr. Hoover predicts an era of unemployment. Senator Harding, when he becomes President, will do all that a willing man can to prevent that prediction coming true. There is no doubt that we are headed toward lack of work and that the cheaper bread, which comes so slowly, will find bread lines here ahead of it—unless the government, the employers and the workers combine, as they readily could, to keep business going and employment plentiful.

ACCUSES OFFICIAL OF PLOT

Convict Tells Court He Sold 10 Stolen Cars to Ray, Lynn Councillor

Thomas F. St. George, an inmate of Cambridge House of Correction, testified in Lynn District Court today that City Councillor Benjamin B. Ray of Lynn bought ten stolen automobiles from him in 1919, knowing them to be stolen.

He declared he was led to become an auto thief by a man who assured him he would always find a ready market at Ray's.

St. George was the principal witness against the city councillor, who as head of the Ray Taxi Company is on trial for receiving stolen property.

The witness stated he lived at No. 8 Buckminster road, Somerville, before conviction, and was a chauffeur for a Cambridge family.

The stolen machines were taken from different points in Cambridge and from Arch street and the Charles street parking space in Boston.

In the thefts he said he had an accomplice known as Ernest White and also as Ritchie.

St. George told Judge Henry T. Lummus he got $100 from Ray for Ford machines, and $200 for machines of another make, in which he specialized. But he had to return to the alleged "fence" $25 of this sum as commission.

In direct examination he said that he could not name the man who told him there was a "ready market at Ray's" for stolen cars.

His first theft was of a touring car he found in the Charles street parking area. He took it to the Ray Taxi Company and was introduced to the "system."

After that, he said, he never had any trouble disposing of the dishonestly acquired machines. Sometimes he had to wait while Ray got a customer, the witness said. Once Ray warned him to telephone before bringing down stolen automobiles.

St. George admitted he was serving a two-year sentence for stealing automobile accessories. He was cross-questioned by Attorney William Sisk of the defence as to a confession he made to District Attorney Fuits of Middlesex County.

Witness admitted making such a confession. He also admitted that he was told he would get a shorter sentence if he "came through" and told the truth about the auto ring.

St. George said he did not know where the accomplice, Ernest White, could be found. The latter is a fugitive from justice.

Children Do Not Know Fire Threatens Building Until They Are in Street

A Mother Superior's presence of mind prevented what might have been a disastrous stampede of 850 children attending the St. Jean Baptiste School in Lynn today when the building caught fire.

Mother Superior Marie Geraldine discovered the blaze in a basement. She gave the fire signal as usual, and stood at the foot of the stairs while the boys and girls filed out, believing the drill was part of the daily routine.

When they reached the street and saw smoke coming from the basement several became hysterical.

The St. Jean Baptiste School is on Endicott street. The fire was in a bale of waste paper under the stairs. It was easily extinguished. School sessions were suspended for the day.

Hear "America First" Orators Friday

Only two days now to turkey, cranberry sauce and mince pie, and only three days to Boston's great "America First" Thanksgiving.

In Mechanics Hall, Huntington avenue!

Friday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock sharp!

Hon. Joseph E. Warner, speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, will preside.

The orators of the evening will be: Hon. David I. Walsh, the cash boy who became Governor of Massachusetts and now is one of the most powerful figures in the Senate at Washington.

Hon. James A. Reed, distinguished attorney, famous orator, former Mayor of Kansas City, United States Senator from Missouri.

Hon. Thomas P. Gore, famous as the Mississippi blind boy who rose to the eminence of United States Senator from Oklahoma.

Reed, Gore and Walsh, in one evening and on the same platform! A Three Americans whose Americanism was endorsed by their fellow Americans on November 1 when, by a plurality reaching towards 7,000,000 the men and women of the United States uttered a thunderous "No!" to the candidate for President who declared that he was for "going in" to the Wilson League of Nations.

BACKED BY MILLIONS.

What Boston is going to have on Friday evening in Mechanics Building, as previous announcements were intended to make clear, is an "America First" Thanksgiving free from political prejudices and personal animosities, a great pæan of gratitude on the return of the American people of the Americanism of the fathers.

In addition to a program of oratory such as has seldom been offered in a single evening, even in Boston, the true-blue Americans who fill Mechanics Hall will enjoy a musical program of surpassing attractiveness. The names of the vocalists will be announced in a day or two. Instrumental music will be by Stone's celebrated military band.

It is expected that when Speaker Warner calls the meeting to order on the stroke of 8 o'clock every seat in the vast auditorium will have its occupant.

AN AMERICAN PROGRAM.

The doors, however, will be open to the public at 7 o'clock, and in the hour preceding the meeting proper the band will render the following preliminary program:

March—Stars and Stripes Forever ..... Sousa
Overture—William Tell ..... Rossini
A Circus of American Folk Melodies ..... Bendix
Intermezzo—Cavillaia ..... Mascagni
Excerpts from "Irene" ..... Tierney
The Songs of Uncle Sam

Is this, or is it not an American program?

Answer—It is!

Well, that is the kind of a meeting it will be, only more so.

Make arrangements to be with us. It will be a Big Night; an occasion to write home about.

No admission fee will be charged. The public is cordially invited to attend. Come and bring the folks!

"America First!"

Central Wharf Flooded During 72-Mile Gale

The storm and the high tide which accompanied it kept even the hardy fishermen in port. Travel to and from the vessels tied up along Atlantic avenue was, in many cases, through water a foot deep. The water, as the photograph shows, didn't seriously interfere with some teamsters.

Girl Lives as 'Man' to Save Expense

By International News Service.

New York, Nov. 23.—The peculiar gait of "James S. Kelley" aroused the suspicions of Detective John Schaudell in the Bowery today. "James" was stopped questioned, and then he screamed.

Taken to a police station, James proved to be Miss Helen Howard of Philadelphia.

Miss Howard, who wore an olive green man's suit, black shoes, soft black hat and a gray shirt, said she arrived from Philadelphia a few days ago, had masqueraded as a man for two years, working in a Philadelphia department store without detection.

A man can live with less expense than a woman, and less likelihood of being insulted," she said. She carried a box containing her hair, which she said she had cut off two years ago.

SLEEPING BROTHERS OVERCOME BY FUMES

Alexander Hines, aged twenty, and his brother, George H., aged twenty-nine, were found early today unconscious in their room at No. 1096 Washington street, where they lodged, with gas pouring from an open jet. They were taken to the City Hospital where the elder brother quickly responded to treatment and was discharged. Alexander's condition is regarded as critical.

BROTHERS GIVEN JAIL IN THEFT

Cambridge Pair Get Nine Months for Disposing of Stolen Automobile

Convicted of receiving the stolen automobile of Dr. Walter C. Feeley of Cambridge, Samuel and Irving Fine of that city, brothers in their early twenties, were sentenced today by Judge Robert Fulton Raymond in Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge to be confined at hard labor in East Cambridge Jail for nine months and to pay fines of $500 each.

The sentences were the first to be imposed since arrests and prosecutions began in the matter of organized thefts of automobiles in Suffolk and Middlesex Counties.

Special Deputy Attorney-General Henry F. Hurlburt urged the Jail sentences.

"My able young colleague, Assistant District Attorney George Stanley Harvey of Middlesex County," said Hurlburt, "on the situation timely, when he said that there would be no stealing of automobiles to this section, if there was no one to receive the stolen goods."

Hundreds of cars have been stolen as Dr. Feeley's was. The public must be protected. These defendants received a stolen car for several hundred dollars as a cost of about $100. Then they deliberately broke it up and disposed of it as junk."

The particular automobile case on trial today—before a jury of only eleven men, by the way—was that of John Kostosky of Cambridge, charged with the attempted larceny on August 21 last of a $2,000 speedster belonging to Kingsbury Brown of Cambridge.

Several men who, the State alleges, were with him at the time are reported to have turned State's evidence against Kostosky, who while a prisoner in the Concord Reformatory was transferred to the Middlesex House of Correction and then released on parole.

The Kostosky jury was minus one member owing to the discovery that Harvey R. Crocker of Reading, one of the panel, was a witness against Herman L. Barkley and another in their trial for the murder of Policeman Deininger of Boston.

REPORT LEAGUE PROPOSAL TO U. S. ON ARMENIA

GALE AND FLOOD WREAK HAVOC

Great Tide Driven in; Ships Crash, Schools Closed, Wharves Washed Out

A raging, northeast gale, attaining a velocity of seventy-two miles off Highland Light, accompanied by a driving rain and the second highest tide in the history of Boston, swept New England and the coast today creating tremendous havoc.

Shipping was completely paralyzed, with at least one vessel not heard from, craft in the harbor dragged their anchors, collisions were frequent and tugs were busy all day.

A fourteen-foot tide was reported at Long Wharf, the biggest on record with the exception of the famous Christmas flood of 1806 when the tide, which reached a mark of 15.44 feet, exceed that by a foot, almost creation at the foot of State street.

Along shore signs were blown down, windows smashed, telegraph and telephone poles, together with trees uprooted, autos flooded and wharves and streets inundated.

SCHOOLS SUSPENDED.

In several sections of Greater Boston the no-school signal was sounded for the morning session, but the storm had increased so much in intensity by noon that other cities and towns followed suit.

According to the weather bureau, the gale was central off Southern New England, with wind velocities displayed from New London, Ct., to Eastport, Me.

The weather man predicted fair weather for tonight, however, and fair and colder tomorrow, with the prospect of a clear Thanksgiving.

The tide gage at the Charles River dam registered 12.14 feet at high-water, while the eastern side of T Wharf was inundated. It was found necessary to move several schooners to the other side of the wharf, because of the tremendous force of tide, and four gasoline boats anchored off the pier broke away from their moorings and were caught by tugs before doing any damage, but the Paul brought up against the steam trawler Foam and the schooner Dawn on the

AMERICANS TO SEE OBREGON TAKE OFFICE

Mexico City, Nov. 23.—The inauguration of President-elect Alvaro Obregon on December 1 will be the most pompous event of the kind since the days of Porfirio Diaz. Visitors from the United States will be present. Special trains will be run from a number of American border cities. As the number of American tourists is growing it is not unlikely that the ceremonies will be witnessed by travelers from Boston, New York and other cities.

BRITISH SEND MILITARY REINFORCEMENTS TO DUBLIN

CAPITAL SURROUNDED BY CORDON OF SOLDIERS

County Cork, during which the police used machine guns. Order was restored after a period of savage fighting.

A long list of new raids, arrests, shootings and incendiary acts by the British military and police, reaching here today, was as follows:

1—In Dublin, while the isolated capital was being subjected to a house to house search for the Sinn Fein "gunmen," a boy of ten years and a man of seventy were shot and killed.

2—At Rush, near Dublin, a Sinn Feiner named McCann was dragged from his home and shot dead in the street.

3—At Skerries, also near the capital, Patrick Matthews, a Labor itc, was shot by the "Black and Tans" and is expected to die.

4—At Swords, six miles from Dublin, "Black and Tans" raided the town and burned the houses of two Sinn Feiners.

FLOUR MILLS BURNED.

5—The great flour mills at Londonderry were burned down.

6—Wholesale arrests were made in the Galway district following extensive raids, and several houses were burned as the aftermath of the clashes resulting from the finding of the dead body of Father Griffin, kidnaped by "Black and Tans," as he started for America. The home of Mrs. Delia O'Connor, who recently returned from the United States, was among those burned down.

7—Nine Sinn Feiners were arrested at Clonmel when soldiers swooped down on the town and invaded homes.

8—At Listowel more than a score of arrests were reported following raids by the military.

9—In the County Tyrone the police wounded a woman during a clash with ambushing Sinn Feiners. An old man witness of the affray dropped dead from fright.

POLICE CHIEF KILLED.

10—At Newry the chief of police was killed in a reprisal. The Sinn Fein hall, the Gaelic League rooms and a flax mill were destroyed.

11—"Black and Tans" in lorries overran the city of Cork, living over the City Hall and residence of the city clerk and seized all documents. There were many clashes but no reports of casualties have been obtainable.

12—Thirty-six were arrested in raids at Queenstown. Private homes were entered and doctors in the town hall and home of the town clerk were seized.

13—Further the raids embraced the offices of the town council and records either taken or destroyed.

14—At Carrick-on-Shannon, "Black and Tans" appeared in the early morning hours and conducted a house-to-house search, while military took charge of the town offices.

15—At Millstreet, County Cork, civilians and Black and Tans engaged in a fierce battle today.

16—There were several arrests in raids at Sligo.

MRS. MacSWINEY THREATENED

Indicating the desperate mood of the Sinn Fein was the new development of the Sunday outbreak in Dublin concerning Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, who was about to enter the Hotel Gresham when it was searched and two killed. The Lord Mayor's widow was summarily stopped at the door by guards, covered with revolvers and ordered not to move.

Three armed men, travelling in an automobile driven by a nurse, were arrested at Sligo, suspected of being implicated in the Dublin shootings. Another machine bound toward Dublin with five armed men was also held up by the police, confirming the belief that gunmen are foregathering at Dublin from various parts of the country in a prearranged plan.

The police say there are still 200 men in Dublin who are concerned in the murders. There are no automobiles on the streets today and no trains are running southeast. Passengers on other lines were closely examined.

Fearing reprisals, the Lord Mayor today applied for the protection of a military escort.

JUDGE ORDERS HEAT FOR MALDEN BUILDING

The owners of the building on Pleasant street, Malden, in which the District Court is located, were ordered today to maintain a temperature in the building of 65 degrees by Judge Lawton of the Superior Court. The plaintiffs in the action, the Middlesex County Commissioners, had asked for a temperature of 70. Judge Lawton declared that "the old fashioned temperature of 68 will be sufficient."

JUDGE FLYNN GUEST OF LAWRENCE BAR

Lawrence, Nov. 23.—Judge George A. Flynn, of Boston, was the honored guest at a testimonial banquet tendered by the members of the Lawrence Bar Association at the Merrimack Valley Country Club. John P. Kane was toastmaster. The session of the Superior Court over which Judge Flynn has presided will close this week.

Montreal, Nov. 23.—Captain Joseph Conrad was given orders to a Malbourne shipbuilder to build him a schooner which will enter in the international ocean races off Halifax next year.

Wife Prefers Cell to Life With Husband

Westfield, Nov. 23.—Offered the choice between two years in the House of Good Shepherd and returning to her husband, Jennie Rogalski, seventeen years old, chose the cell.

"I would rather spend 100 years in the House of Good Shepherd than one day with that man," she told the court which a short time before had tried her for forgery.

She said she had been forced to marry Cosmo Bianchi of Hartford by her father at Rocky Hill, Ct., and that she had only lived with him three days.

POLICE LOOK UP JURORS

Homes Visited and Families Questioned About Relations With Present Force

Boston police officers have been investigating the jurors serving on the sessions of the Suffolk Superior Court, according to statements made to Officer Burns, Barnett and Anglin of hat court by the jurymen themselves today.

Attaches of the district attorney's office declared, when they learned of this, that such investigation, if it is being made, is not conducted at the request of the office, which had not considered such an inquiry necessary.

According to the assertions made by the veniremen and jurors, police officers had visited their homes during their absence and had questioned their families regarding the relations of the absent men with members of the police force.

The police also are said to have asked if the jurrors or veniremen were in any way connected with former members of the force.

Other questions related to the length of time the jurors had lived in their present homes, and where they had lived prior to moving to their present addresses.

The intimation, said the jurors, was that the police desire to learn if possible, whether any of the men now serving on the jury are likely to entertain any antipathy toward members of the present police force.

Several days ago Commissioner Curtis, it was learned today, sent instructions to the commanders of each police division, calling for one trusted man at headquarters for special duty. That duty, it was declared today, was to investigate the prospective jurors.

The noticed to jurors for the December term, which has been drawn up by the City Council, will be sent out tomorrow.

east side of the fish pier. The gasoline boat and the Dawn were both damaged.

The Jenney, another gasoline boat, crushed into the piling on the south side of the pier and was also badly splintered.

AUGUSTA DRAGS ANCHORS.

The Savannah liner City of Augusta, which cleared for Savannah yesterday and was forced to anchor off Deer Island, dragged for three-quarters of a mile toward Spectacle Island before her anchors held.

The tank steamer J. A. Bostwick, which sailed from this port yesterday in ballast for New York, had not been heard from, and it was hoped that she was riding the gale outside.

The Leyland line freighter Oronian, Captain Perry, which entered the bay yesterday but was unable to get a pilot, took one on today despite the storm. Despite the efforts of tugs, however, she was unable to make her berth and anchored in the stream.

The fruit steamer San Mateo, from Costa Rica, although aided by four tugs, met a stiffer experience, while the Merchants and Miners' steamship Dorchester, due from Baltimore and Norfolk with passengers, was reported to have put into Vineyard Haven.

FORCED TO PUT IN.

The ocean tug Swatara, which sailed for Philadelphia, was forced to put into Nantucket Sound for shelter.

The majority of the wharves along the waterfront were at least partly underwater, while the tide flooded the Malden, Medford and Everett marshes to a depth of two or three feet, almost breaking over the boulevard.

DANGER AT SANDWICH.

In Massachusetts bay a sixty-five-mile gale was reported, while the entire cape was lashed by high seas and heavy rains. In Sandwich a wall of the factory of the Sandwich Corporation, paper manufacturers, which was under process of reconstruction, was blown down.

School was suspended in Arlington, Woburn, Bedford, Lexington, Waltham, Somerville and the Newtons, while one man in Bedford claimed that his automobile was blown off the road.

From all sections came reports of trees uprooted and sign blown down, with pleasure boats ashore all along the coast.

At least one person was injured by a piece of slate torn from the roof of a grain elevator in Charlestown.

The victim was Angelo Mulo of No. 28 Moore street, Cambridge, who was working on Pier 42 of the Hoosac Tunnel docks. Mulo was taken to the Relief Station suffering from cuts on the hands and arms.

The Narrow Gauge reported a partial washout at Pleasant Street in Winthrop, with trains forced to proceed with extreme care and very slowly.

In Squantum the water covered the tracks of the trolley line to a depth of two inches, but the service was not interrupted. At Neponset service was also interfered with to some extent.

Graves Light reported a tremendous sea running, the worst of the season, with no shipping in sight. Coastwise schedules were completely upset, with all craft riding out the gale in port.

A few fishermen ran in with small catches, reporting disagreeable weather for more than a week. The remainder of the fleet were said to be here to on the Banks. Even the hardy offshore fishermen refused to leave T wharf.

WINTHROP HIT HARD.

At Winthrop the surf, carrying with it pebbles and small rocks, surged up over the Crest and was buried at windows of houses on Shore Drive with such force that many were broken.

The self-propelling trolley plying between Winthrop Beach and Point Shirley was forced to discontinue because of a flood of water on Shirley street. Residents of Point Shirley made their way to the beach station in automobiles, wagons and jitneys to take the train for Boston.

Miniature torrents rushed down all the streets running from the Crest to Shirley street in Winthrop, and residents who wished to get about outdoors were compelled to wear rubber boots. They declared the surf to be the worst in ten years.

SURF OVER BOULEVARD.

At Revere the surf piled over the Boulevard reaching almost to the steps of the Metropolitan police station. Traffic on the Boulevard was blocked, Short Beach was flooded, and at Beachmont the water lapped some of the houses.

In Chelsea the water lapped the piers of the North and South and Meridian street drawbridges, being only about eight inches from the street. Small boats were also torn from their moorings and thrown against the piers, while many were capsized.

In Newton, Waltham and Wellesley telephone and telegraph poles were blown down, limbs of trees torn off, electric lighting and fire alarm systems put out of commission temporarily.

The highest tide in years was reported at Savin Hill, Dorchester, where the water reached the bathhouses, passing over the sea wall.

MALT AND HOPS BAN CALLED "FALSE ALARM"

Columbus, O., Nov. 23.—The scare over home brewers received about a ban on malt and hops was a false alarm, according to an announcement issued by the malt and hop growers of Ohio. The dealers sent their counsel to Washington for a conference with the prohibition enforcement department. He found that no such ruling had either been issued or was in contemplation. The attorneys decided that pressure had been brought on the enforcement department by cereal beverage manufactures, but the officials have refused to make any such ruling.

HEARST'S MAGAZINE—A LIBERAL EDUCATION

Do Your Children Go to Church?

Your father and grandfather believed in religion and prayer. The Bible went westward with rifles and axes in prairie schooners. In 1861—when the great moral clash came—prayer was a great part of the life of our nation.

But to-day we are not a church-going nation. Only one in every three of the 1,600,000,000 human beings on this earth are nominal worshippers of the God of the Jews and Gentiles. Will the next generation try to get along without religion?

A century or half a century from now will the United States be classed among the nations that believe in God?

Or will the ever-changing generations—products of the generation we are now producing—wish it otherwise? And, in so deciding, will they make it a better or a worse land than it is today?

GARLAND MILLION IS TO BE HELD IN TRUST FOR BABY GIRL

HARVARD MAY GET FORTUNE

Would Pass in Entirety to College if Garlands Leave No Offspring

The million dollar fortune that Charles Garland refused will be held in trust for his daughter, now one month old, and any other children that may be born to him.

This was made known today by an official of the estate who is one of the custodians of the several million dollars left by "Jimmy" Garland, popular New York and Boston clubman.

In the event of no children surviving Charles Garland his share will be diverted to his brothrs, James A. Jr., and Hamilton or their children.

The fortune held in trust under the terms of the will, will remain in the Garland family so long as there are direct descendants. In the event of the family failing to perpetuate it, it will pass in its entirety to Harvard College.

While impressed with the sincerity of Charles Garland's idealistic views, this official of the estate regrets that he does not see his way clear to accept the inheritance and dispose of it for humanitarian purposes.

"DECISION FINAL."

This the heir says would involve recognition of the right of the State to give it to him, to which he declines to accede.

"No one can talk to this young man without realizing that Christ means something to him," said the custodian.

"He may be right and I may be wrong but I wish for his own sake that he had met more experience with the world before making the decision."

Although Garland says his decision is final, there is nothing to prevent his changing his opinion and accepting the million at any time during his life.

Like his brother, Hamilton Garland believes he can gain more happiness in life by honest toil and believes that by accepting the million left him by his father he would be taking advantage of his fellowmen.

Hamilton, who is very studious, but also loves outdoor sports, being an enthusiastic oarsman, was interviewed in his room at No. 32 Dunster Hall, Cambridge, made the following statement:

"In my opinion my brother was right when he refused his share," he said, "and when I reach my majority next year I will do the same thing. No reason exists why I should take it unless we are over my fellow-man. As I have never done anything to warrant the money, I shall not accept it.

MOTHER IN ITALY.

"All men deserve an equal opportunity in life, and as long as the laws of inheritance exist, such an equality cannot exist. Simple happiness for myself and for my fellowman is my chief aim in life."

Mrs. Marie Tudor Garland, mother of the young men, is now in Italy and contemplates returning to this country. She forfeited her right to her share of the Garland estate when she married Francis Cushing Green in 1912.

A proud old woman sits in a second floor suite of the apartment house at the corner of Beacon and Joy streets and bears the Garland name. Each piece of the antique furniture that fills the rooms is a reminder of the days when the Garland name was synonmous with leadership in New England. Her windows face the Common, the busy, kaleidoscopic centre of Boston's everyday life, suggestive of the changes the last forty years have brought.

She is Mrs. Frederic Tudor, whose grandson Charles Garland, has just refused his share of the millions his father left in order to be true to an ideal.

TUDORS NOTED ARISTOCRATS.

Poverty and manual labor, which he has adopted, were never welcomed through the door of the Brookline home from which Mrs. Tudor formerly directed the activities of Boston's exclusive society. But she does not criticise Charles Garland for the decision he has made.

German Wed Her by Deceit

MRS. NELLIE P. HENKE.

Forced to register as an enemy alien during the war because she had married a German, who deceived her into believing that he was a Swede, Mrs. Nellie P. Henke left him at once and has lived without his support ever since, according to her testimony in the Suffolk divorce court before Judge Bell. She applied for an annulment of the marriage to George H. Henke.

Mrs. Henke's case is considered without precedent in Massachusetts courts. Its unusual character puzzled both court and attorneys. Judge Bell took the case under advisement, requesting that in the meantime Mrs. Henke's counsel look up the law on this point.

According to Mrs. Henke's story, which can be borne out by depositions from her father and mother, she and Henke were married in May, 1918, after he told her that he was a Swede. Within half an hour of their marriage, she said, she saw a newspaper article about Swedish aliens and offered him to read. He expressed indifference, she said, telling her that he was a German.

Later, he denied this, but in July, 1919, a Federal agent visited their home and told her that she must register as an enemy alien. Deeply humiliated, being American born, she left her husband at once. She told the court of several attempts he had made to return to Germany, and said he was in that country at present.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Penford of Limerville, Pa., testified in their depositions that they came to Boston for their daughter's wedding; that after the marriage they went to the Copley Square Hotel, where the bride was found in tears; that she declined to tell them the trouble at that time, but the next day stated that her husband was a German and that he admitted it.

RULE BY SOVIET WINS VANDERLIP

Cost of Army of 4,000,000 Cheerfully Borne by the People, He Says

London, Nov. 22.—Washington D. Vanderlip has just returned from a trade trip to Russia bringing immense orders.

In discussing his personal impressions of Moscow and Petrograd and their environs, Vanderlip declared: "Lenin gave away in order five thirty million school books for immediate delivery. Lenin has decreed that within the next five years all persons under sixty years of age must be able to read and write.

ARMY OF 4,000,000 MEN.

"The maintenance of an army of 4,000,000 well-disciplined troops is an immense drain upon resources, but they are cheerfully borne by the people, who are intensely patriotic. The army got the first of everything, and the hospitals and children have second call upon the food. After that come the civilians. I was listed for cabbage soup and black bread.

"I lost twenty pounds, but I feel better. Russia is a great sanitarium for fat people. The only trouble with the food is its nameless, but the people are healthy."

"Peasants and nobles in rags and diamonds sat side by side watching the most beautiful production I ever witnessed. There is nothing like it in America or Europe. Not one, but sixty Pavlowas, with three hundred chorus girls with the most wonderful scenic and lighting effects and gorgeous costumes."

CHURCHES NOT LOOTED.

Vanderlip emphasized that the churches have not been looted as reported, but that on the contrary the population is intensely religious. There is no drunkenness, no immorality and no illegitimacy, the State recognizing all children as equal. He added:

"I cannot say that the people are the happiest, but they are content to make their sacrifices in order to attain their own Government. They want the friendship of the outside world, especially of America.

"The government asks America to send 5,000 engineers to Russia as soon as trade is reopened to rejuvenate the industries of the country. Russia's engineers have almost been killed off by the war."

"Lenin has freed Russia's millions and is building up a new nation. England gave Lincoln, whom she cordially hated in Civil War time, a room in the abbey of Westminster, and the same thing will happen in the case of Lenin fifty years from now."

BEAUTY SOUGHT IN SLAYING

Blonde Companion of Philadelphia Manufacturer Vanishes Before Crime Is Discovered

Philadelphia, Nov. 22.—A beautiful blonde woman, driving a big red touring car, was sought today in connection with the murder of Henry T. Pierce, middle-aged manufacturer, found slain in a room in the rear of his office here.

She is not more than twenty-one years old, and is believed to be protected by a male accomplice.

Pierce, Eastern manager of the Insley Manufacturing Company, was last seen alive late Saturday night, at which time he was observed quietly entering his own office with the woman.

Monday his body was found. The head had been smashed in, probably with a wrench which lay close by. To make sure of death, the gas had been turned on.

All his money was gone. His pockets were turned inside out. A gold watch and two diamond rings were missing, as was the big red touring car, last seen standing in front of the office building.

The office bore testimony that the manufacturer and the blonde had had a riotous "party" before the tragedy. A half-filled bottle of whiskey was found in the room where the body lay. Other empty bottles were about the office. Two glasses were on the table, still undrained.

The police are puzzled to account for the murder on the theory that the woman accomplished it alone. The blows must have been delivered with terrific force. The authorities are inclined to believe she had an accomplice, who followed her and her middle-aged companion to the latter's office and killed him after trying to extort money from him.

Persons who saw the woman entering Pierce's office describe her as about five feet two inches in height and plump. She wore a three-quarter length brown coat and was fashionably dressed.

The car in which it is believed she and her supposed accomplice escaped is a boat-shaped affair of twelve cylinders, very noticeable because of its color.

Mrs. Irene Pierce, widow of the slain manufacturer, told the police she dreamed Saturday night her husband was in danger. In the dream she tried to save him. He left with five sons, ranging from four to thirteen years.

BRITISH SNEER AT U.S. SHIPS

Ridicule Is Their Latest Weapon to Combat American Merchant Marine

Driven into a corner, Great Britain is now using ridicule as her latest weapon in the desperate struggle she is making to retain her rule of the seas against the growing tide of the American merchant marine.

Unable to meet the fierce competition of the able-bodied seamen of the United States, the sailors of Britain are resorting to sneers and jeers in their efforts to keep shippers from using American ships.

So declares a former skipper who has sailed the seven seas for years and now holds a highly responsible position under the American government, connected with the mercantile service. His name for obvious reasons cannot be used, but what he has to say throws a clear light on the situation.

"It is a common thing," he declares, "for the men and officers of our merchant ships to come back home bubbling over with wrath at the treatment they have received at the hands of British merchant captains and officers aboard.

BAD ENOUGH DURING WAR.

"It was bad enough during the war, when so many of our ships had to be officered by Britishers, but it is worse now that the native-born and native-trained seaman is taking the place that rightfully belongs to him on the ships Uncle Sam built and owns.

"All sorts of little annoyances also are being made use of in British ports. Americans returning from abroad tell me that the British show special spite to Americans in their ports. A favorite trick is to force American skippers to shift berths at night. That not only requires the payment of overtime charges and a special fee to port and dock officials, but is intensely disagreeable.

"Then too, the British port officers are quick to discriminate against American vessels and American officers in the matters of unloading, filling to the succeeding operations of any steamship line.

"Unnecessary delays are common as are breakdowns of unloading and loading machinery and all the other well known tricks of the trade are made use of constantly.

FAIL TO HALT YANKEES.

"But all these things are failing to halt the steady increase of American shipping, so the Britisher has resorted to ridicule. I have recently received a report of a meeting held in London by the Imperial Merchant Service Guild. Throughout the entire bulky report there runs a note of disparagement of America's merchant service and of this country's ability to build and operate ships.

"One of that there is the realization of what the United States did during the war, and the fact that Great Britain is to face with a real competition for the ocean-carried traffic of its vast commerce.

"In knowing they are unable to offer better service than the Americans they are resorting to sneers, jeers and our ships, in the hope that they may make shippers believe we are unfit to handle their goods for them.

"The drift one of the addresses made before the meeting in London covered. It was to the effect that most of the rivalry the British merchant service has to fear comes from the American merchant fleets 'operated and sailed in large part by Britishers who have left their country for the United States.'

"NIGGER ON WOOD FENCE."

"This speaker called the British seamen now employed on American ships 'the nigger on the wood fence.' He came in with other speakers he disparaged American steamship but confessed fear of the competition displayed by the countrymen.

"One might think," went on the official, "that I do not like the British people. I do, in their own place. But I am for America first, and I want to see the American merchant marine in the first place in the world trade, where it belongs.

"During the war it was common for British captains to 'ride' their American officers and in one instance I know of an American mate, a stiff twenty years of service at sea, who was driven insane by the constant fault-finding of his skipper and who jumped over the side and drowned himself."

Weds While Ill in Bed

Mrs. Norman A. Staples, nee Ellis, Brockton girl who married despite her being under quarantine with diphtheria.

Brockton, Nov. 23.—Mrs. Norma A. Staples, who was married while dangerously ill in bed with diphtheria, is today on the road to complete recovery, according to the attending physician, Dr. Fred J. Ripley.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen E. Ellis of No. 13 Malvern road, where the ceremony was to have been attended by a large number of friends. The night before the date set for the marriage Miss Ellis was taken ill, and the following day the house was quarantined.

While Dr. Ripley and a trained nurse watched over the case the quarantine regulations were observed, the bridegroom took his place outside the door of the room where the bride was lying ill in bed. From the doorway Mrs. James Holmes performed the words that made them one. The bride rallied immediately after the ceremony and is now growing stronger ever since.

WHITE INNOCENT SAYS WIFE

Sure Husband, Accused in South Boston Death Case, Did Not Kill Berger

"There must be some mistake. I know that Joe didn't kill him," sobbed Mrs. Elizabeth S. White, whose husband, Joseph P. White, a local boxer and former policeman, is accused of the murder of Philip W. Berger because of Mrs. White's friendship for the dead man.

Berger, who worked in a market, is said to have met White as he was leaving work. He was picked up with a fractured skull shortly afterwards and died in the Boston City Hospital the following day.

Mrs. White, who had declared her intention of getting a legal separation from her husband, said today that she is more than willing to go back to him if he will promise not to be cruel to her any more. She denied there was the least cause for the jealousy which she admits existed between White and Berger.

Mrs. White and her husband sit months ago. Mrs. White has worked in the W. C. A. cafeteria and regularly at knitting socks, sweaters and mufflers at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Chase, No. 44 Field street, Roxbury. In telling of the last time she saw Berger alive, Mrs. White said:

"I had gone to the drug store and Phil was there. He had cut his hand and, while we were talking, Joe came in. Joe spoke to Phil and asked him why he had not paid money he owed for room rent when he lived with us.

"Then Phil got on a car and rode away, while Joe walked back to the house with me. He stayed half an hour, and though we had no reconciliation he told me that he was going to make a lot of money in the ring and make a new home for us. I was happy at that.

"Joe is a big fellow. He acted so roughly that we could not live together, but there was never the least reason why he should be jealous of Phil and me."

White was a patrolman, stationed at the Hanover street station for about eight months, quitting to go on strike with the uniformed patrolmen in September, 1919. He had won quite as a fighter while with the force and, after the strike, he turned to the prize ring for a living. He has refused to admit he caused Berger's death, although freely confessing to their meeting.

Berger boarded with the Whites for several months. All of the actors in the tragedy were born in Lithuania. White's name formerly was Whitewoff.

WIFE ACCUSES 'HAL' CHASE

Ball Player, in Divorce Suit, Charged With Attentions to Other Women

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 23.—Mrs. Anna M. Chase, wife of "Hal" Chase, former major league ball player, signed papers here in a divorce suit charging her husband with wasting money on other women, losing large sums in gambling and with refusing to contribute adequately to her support.

Mrs. Chase charges that the ball player on various occasions intimidated, through other men, women of questionable character into her home. She says his conduct has caused her much humiliation and mortification.

He has only given her a dollar and a quarter to live on since March of this year, she charges.

A paper in Chase's fall name to be Harold M. Chase and his residence San Jose, Cal. They were married May 27, 1913, at Jersey City, N. J.

Mrs. Chase says she left her husband several times but that she never promised to reform. He always went back to his old habits, she says. Chase was born in Boston a year ago. She asks for the restoration of her maiden name, Anna M. Downing, and for the custody of the children here.

He was arrested October 31, after a year's absence from this city, during which time he roamed about the country, gaining renown as an exhibition flyer, and married a beautiful young wife and child, it is charged.

How young people occupy positions of social prominence.

The proceedings of the trial has created a furore in society. Except that their married life had not been of the most congenial nature, the domestic relations of affairs until yesterday Powers and McNeil arrested Daniels as he returned to Texas. Even then the news was carefully suppressed.

With the trial's opening it also became known that Mrs. Daniels is suing for divorce in the case of Mary E. Daniels of this city, for $10,000 for alienation of her husband's affections.

LEFT WITHOUT MONEY.

According to Mrs. Daniels, her husband left her without money in 1919, while they were spending the Summer at a country home near Lenox. Later she disappeared without warning. There was little or no money in the house and for days she and the child lived on scraps of food and milk. Fear that her stores as she recounted the words that made them one. The bride rallied immediately after the ceremony and is now growing stronger ever since.

Mrs. Daniels testified to much unhappiness from the time her husband returned from the war.

"He told me that he had married life, that he didn't love me or want me, and not much know why he got married, she asserted. "He said often and lots of other horrible things which I don't like to say he meant it. He said he would go away, but I didn't think so. I never believed he would do it."

DECLARES INDIA HAS 22,000,000 CHILD WIDOWS

That there are twenty-two million child widows in India was stated by Miss Ella A. Sibley, captain in the Salvation Army, of India, in an address before the students of the Boston University College of Business Administration. Brigadier Tatsyn, who has been in India for years carrying on the work of the Salvation Army in India, summed up the four great evils of India as being the keeping the progress of civilization in that country as idolatry, the degradation of women, immorality, and the caste system.

SHOT FIRED AT SOUTH END MAN

Bullet Follows Refusal to Throw Up Hands at Robber's Demand

George Galey, a Berkeley street fruit dealer, was shot at by a hold-up man as he was about to enter his home at No. 91 Hudson street, South End, early today, when he refused to accede to the robber's demands to throw up his hands.

He grappled with the man and the two rolled about the sidewalk for several minutes until a patrolman from Division 4 arrived on the scene and placed the gunman under arrest.

The man, who is believed to be a member of a gang responsible for several holdups in the South End during the past week, said he was Arthur S. Mosher, twenty-one years old, of No. 330 Shawmut avenue. The police say that he has served time for robbery in New York and Philadelphia.

The gunman stepped from the hallway of Galey's home as the latter was about to enter. He placed a revolver at his head and ordered him to throw up his hands. Galey answered by swinging his right fist into the robber's face. The man fired, but the shot sped past Galey's head.

The police claim that Mosher had followed Galey home on three successive nights and that today, when the storekeeper closed his place of business, Mosley ran ahead and hid in the doorway of the Hudson street home until Galy arrived.

The fruit dealer carried more than $150 in his pockets.

Angle Worms, Fried, Choice Dish

Colorado Springs, Colo., Nov. 23.—Fried angle worms may become the piece de resistance of collegiate luncheon in "Little Lunnon" following Professor Lloyd-Shaw's declaration today that they are a choice dish.

In a lecture Professor Shaw described the angle worm as consisting mainly of two fleshy halves coursed by a small alimentary system, and told pupils that there was no reason why it should not be eaten.

A group of his pupils dug up a mess of angle worms, fried them in butter and presented them to the professor, who ate them with relish.

ATTACKED GIRL WITH HAMMER, IS CHARGE

Sharon, Nov. 23.—Edward S. Lawrence, sixteen years old, is under arrest here, accused of hitting sixteen-year-old Isabelle Pastauro over the head with a hammer and then dragging her into the woods off Belcher street.

The girl's outcries frightened her assailant away before he had otherwise injured her and it was on her description that Lawrence was apprehended. He denied his guilt. His pants and sweaters were heavily bemeared with mud, which he could not explain satisfactorily.

BURGLARS LOOT COURT ST. SAFE

Offices of Faneuil A. C. and Franklin Association Entered; Dues Stolen

Burglars broke into the offices of the Faneuil Athletic Club and the Franklin Association on the second floor of No. 39 Court street during the night, opened a safe in the latter place and got away with $200.

The thieves first forced the door of the athletic club and, after ransacking the place, jimmied their way into the Franklin Association room next door. There they turned the safe on its side and cut a hole through the bottom.

The money stolen was made up of dues received from members Saturday. The association is the insurance branch of the Typographical Union.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immediate, effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

WHERE U BOT THE HAT

Old-Fashioned Methods of Cooking Again Proved Expensive

A Lesson to Housewives—Mazola Goes Twice as Far for Frying Fish

LARD and other animal fats soak up into the food when you cook with it. This is not only wasteful, but it makes the food greasy and indigestible.

Other Interesting Money-Saving Demonstrations by Expert Cook. Read Details.

Mazola, the Great American Cooking Medium, is used so hot that it cooks the outside of the food quickly. Hence it does not soak into the food—to anything near the extent of other fats.

This fact was again demonstrated when Mrs. A. Louise Andrea, famous expert in modern cookery, fried 25¾ lbs. of fish steaks in 2 lbs. of Mazola. The same amount of lard fried only 16½ lbs. The fish steaks were cut to an average thickness of one inch.

Frying Three Times as Many Potatoes

During the same series of experiments—which can be duplicated to anyone interested—Mrs. Andrea fried 24½ lbs. of potatoes in 2 lbs. of Mazola, while the same amount of lard cooked only 7 lbs. 14 oz. of potatoes.

Also, of doughnuts, Mrs. Andrea fried 208 in 2 lbs. of Mazola, while 2 lbs. of lard fried only 138 doughnuts.

In each test 4 lbs. of lard and 4 lbs. of Mazola were fried down to 2 lbs.

The wonderful economy of Mazola is now indisputably proved. It is nearly twice as economical for frying doughnuts as lard.

It goes nearly twice as far frying fish, and three times as far frying potatoes.

The Greatest Sale of Any Cooking Oil

No wonder Mazola is acclaimed by more than seven million housewives, and that it is found universally in the best hotels, clubs and dining cars of leading railroads.

Mazola is 100% pure vegetable fat. There is no loss of evaporation—nor loss of bulk from heating. It always remains sweet and clean, and can be used over and over again—merely strain it.

Mazola is sold by all leading grocers in pint, quart, half-gallon and full gallon cans.

Once you try Mazola for Salads you will prefer it to the finest imported olive oils. The price of Mazola is about half that of olive oil. No customs duty—no ocean freight charges on Mazola.

Aroostook County Aroused by Stella Nightengale's Suit Against Fort Fairfield Man

Houlton, Me., Nov. 23.—Aroostook County awaits with interest the testimony in the $20,000 breach of promise suit brought by Stella Beatrice Nightengale against Charles Leith.

The case will be heard this week in the Supreme Court here.

Both figures in the suit are from Fort Fairfield where they are well-known.

The case is attracting much attention owing to the fact that W. R. Pattangall of Augusta has been retained by the defence and R. W. Shaw and his son, Herschel Shaw, have been retained by the plaintiff.

Not since the famous Sullivan case has Houlton been aroused to such a pitch of excitement.

LAME VET'S MITE GIVEN RED CROSS

Expresses Gratitude for Silver Hip by Assisting Lagging Drive for Funds

The slightest possible limp was discernible as he walked into the American Legion tent on Tremont street mall, opposite Temple place, today. He was modestly dressed and only his upright carriage would indicate that he had been a soldier.

"Want to enroll?" asked one of the workers for the fourth Red Cross Membership Roll Call of Boston Metropolitan Chapter.

"No, not exactly," he replied as he stood before the uniformed young woman. "You see," and he unbuttoned his army overcoat, which had been dyed a deep brown, and pointed to his 1921 Red Cross button, "I've attended to that, all right."

"Is there anything we can do for you?" courteously asked the Red Cross worker.

"Well, yes," and he fumbled into his change pocket. "Here's a quarter; it isn't much, but I see where you are having a hard time to raise the $200,000 you set out after, and if this is any help you're welcome to it.

EXAMPLE FOR OTHERS.

"Few people know it now, but I'm walking around without crutch or cane just because the Red Cross furnished me with a silver hip when my own was shot away in France. There probably is several hundred dollars' worth of silver in my hip, but if the quarter's of any help, you're most welcome to it," and he turned and walked away.

He had done his "bit"; he had remembered his friend in need, and he was happy in that he had performed his duty to the utmost of his ability.

The ex-soldier of the Yankee Division had set an example for the thousands of people in Greater Boston, who unquestionably are not compliant of the significance of the failure of Boston Chapter to raise the $200,000 fund which will be necessary to carry on its work for the ex-soldiers and sailors and their families and the countless other activities and benefits for the unfortunate element in general.

Not only are the ex-service men, members of the American Legion, rallying to the cause of the Red Cross in these last three days of the two-weeks' campaign, but the threatrical folk in the city are proffering their assistance for the success of the drive.

THEATRICAL GIRLS AID.

Grant Mitchell, leading man of "The Champion" company at Selwyn's Park Square Theatre, and a bevy of pretty girls from "The Night Boat" company at the Colonial, conducted a membership campaign at the legion tent on the Common today. The army band furnished the music. Tomorrow the navy band will hold forth and the girls of the "As You Were" company at the Wilbur will buttonhole everybody in the neighborhood tomorrow noon.

Because of the inclement weather, Mrs. C. C. Ely, chairman of the Membership Campaign Committee, has requested that all who have not yet been enrolled in the various 36 districts of Greater Boston, send their membership fee of $1 to Boston Metropolitan Chapter headquarters, No. 124 Berkeley street.

Miss Dorothy Forbes, chairman, and Miss Helen Bennett, vice chairman of the Donations Committee, have been greatly encouraged by the additional contributions which have been received at the committee's headquarters, No. 278 Dartmouth street.

Work of Junior Red Cross Now Covers World

The general program for the Junior Red Cross during the next six months is one of benefit to both the children of America and the children of the Old World. Its activities will help the rising generations of both hemispheres to understand one another through mutual service and interchange of educational information.

Junior Red Cross is the mobilization of children to service in the daily routine of life. It is the fostering of the natural instincts of a child through every-day school lessons.

The American Red Cross maintains a Junior Department, whose duty it is to stimulate and advise when necessary and to act as the official means of connection between all the other departments of the Red Cross and the School Auxiliaries, and to act as forwarding agent and information bureau for all Junior work.

This department must be supported by the public and maintained at the greatest degree of efficiency, for it is in daily contact with the highly specialized educational system of the United States and represents the schools of this country in their relief work abroad.

It operates through the educational systems of affiliated nations, and is the medium by which the Junior Red Cross in other countries communicates with the schools of the United States.

OFFICERS DENY HAITI CHARGES

Marines Shot to Save Own Lives, Says Returned Major; Natives Behead, Is Claim

New York, Nov. 23.—"The United States Marines in Haiti, as everywhere else in the world, are true types of Americans and that never killed without cause, and then only to save their lives," said Major Thomas Turner for the last fourteen months chief of staff to Colonel Wheeler in Haiti, upon his arrival here from Port Au Prince.

Major Turner isolated the stories of wholesale killings and "atrocities" in Haiti were grossly exaggerated.

Lieut. Walter Farrell, who arrived with Major Turner, corroborated the major's assertions.

"While the people are talking of indiscriminate killings in Haiti," said Lieut. Farrell, who spent fourteen months in the Hinche district, the most troublesome in Haiti, "they might ask the number of bodies of marines that were sent to the United States without heads." He added that bandits were terrorizing a large section of Haiti. He characterized as "framed" the testimony against Freedman Long, former marine and now officer of gendarmes, who was accused of killing nine men without justification.

Steel Mill Efficiency

As to the efficiency of steel mill labor, it is reported from Pittsburgh, that one large company recently made up a comparison of daily output per man in the years 1916 and 1920. This showed that efficiency so far this year is only 75 per cent. of what it was in 1916. But in the last month or two there has been less difference.

BEAR ATTACK HALTS RISE

Market Opens Strong, but Profits Taken Quickly; Good Support for Industrials

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Stocks were heavy in New York at noon, the market suffering from a reaction in the second hour. Bears made a drive at steels and rails and oils when they found that certain industrial were getting strong support from some powerful financial interests. At the end of the forenoon losses outbalanced gains.

New Haven sold at its lowest record price, declining almost six points. The selling of this rail was based on statements as to the new financing it would require, but there was a very active, first hour transactions amounting to 420,000 shares.

Call money opened at 6 per cent. Foreign exchange had a good tone, demand sterling opening at 3.52¾, up one cent; francs, 7.40½, up 8.0001; lire at 5.0399, up 1.0002.

BEGAN WITH ADVANCES.

Trading began with stocks in great demand, short covering being in urgent as was selling a week ago. As in that period, prices were from fractions to five points above Monday's closing quotations. The activity and strength was largely confined to industrials, with General Motors a feature. Its opening sales aggregated 15,000 shares at from 14½ to 17½, the gain at the latter price being 2½ points scored from the initial sale. Crucible advanced 3¾ on its first transactions. Other strong stocks at the start were Houston Oil, Baldwin, Bethlehem B, American Locomotive, American Can, Chandler, Endicott Johnson, General Electric, Lackawanna Steel, Stromberg, Texas Co, Sumatra, U S Rubber, U S Steel and Worthington Pump. They went up from one to three points. Many of these got no higher.

LOWER MONEY SIDE BULLS.

The drop in call money to 5 per cent. yesterday was a great aid to bulls. Aside from practical advantages, the lower rate in more than a year was of sentimental value. It was concrete evidence that the monetary situation is easing easier. Federal Reserve bank reports indicate a relaxation of the credit strain. The improvement, however, is ascribed mainly to a contraction of business, and that it is not likely to increase the market valuation of securities whose values are dependent upon trade for dividends. The present rally was regarded by investors as based on the technical condition of the market. How much higher prices will go or how long they will remain at the improvement level is a gamble. At the end of the first hour the market was still strong and active, but with prices below the opening. There was some profit taking before mid-morning.

TRADE WITH MEXICO STEADILY EXPANDING

The trade of this country with Mexico has been expanding steadily since the war in Europe ceased. The September gain in Mexican exports to the United States was 100 per cent. as compared with the corresponding 1919 month, while imports increased 12 per cent. Exports and imports combined were $5,000,000 above the monthly average of nine months of this year, $10,000,000 above the average for the first nine months of 1919 and $13,000,000 above the 1918 average for such a period.

Imports from Mexico of crude oil have rapidly increased, from 1,261,994,692 gallons at 3.0128 in 1917, to 2,844,505,834 gallons at 3.0128 or $35,501,645 in nine months of 1920. The average import price in September last was $.0121, against $.0125 in August, and $.0114 in September, 1919.

MAN BADLY HURT BY FALL DOWNSTAIRS

George Olson of No. 64 Pemberton square fell twenty-five feet down a flight of stairs at Scollay square early today, and was removed to the Relief Station, suffering from multiple injuries.

For the year to date the total coal production totalled 476,475,000 tons, a gain of 67,000,000 over the corresponding 1919 period, while anthracite production was 53,873,000, as compared with 57,619,000 up to the like date last year. As regards bituminous production there was a 30,000,000 tons surplus at the end of 1919, and a 40,000,000 deficit at the close of last year.

EARLY HEARING OF ALIEN TRADING CASE URGED

Washington, Nov. 23.—The Department of Justice has asked the United States Supreme Court to advance for early hearing cases testing the constitutionality of the construction of the trading with the enemy act and action to recover property seized by the alien property custodian. One of the most important of these cases is that instituted by the Central Union Trust Company of New York City.

More Inquiry for Copper

While there is more inquiry for copper, sales are still few and for small amounts. The dullness of the market is indicated by a statement from one New York reseller: "Copper can be bought for 14¼ cents delivered up to the end of the year. Large producers are asking 14½ cents up to January 1, and for first quarter deliveries from 14¾ to 15 cents." Small dealers and second hands are naming 14¾ cents for refinery on nearby deliveries and 14½ to 14¾ cents on shipments early in the new year.

Expect Bull Market Soon

A bull market may begin before the end of 1920, according to an opinion expressed by William W. Cohen & Co. This house says: "If as many competent judges now believe, we are to have improved credit conditions, easier money and a business revival after the turn of the year, the market is not likely to wait until such a time arrives before beginning the process of discounting such improvement in commercial and financial affairs."

We have compiled a selected list of issues yielding 10% and more on present market prices.

These selections represent a wide range of industries and thus offer possibilities for making up an investment somewhat on diversity and balance along with the attractive dividend yield.

Only the unusually low prices just now ruling on securities make such a high yield on such a selection of issues possible, and if you are interested in starting an account of this kind (such stocks also offer speculative opportunities) we suggest you send at once for this list and for particulars of the method by which you can embrace the

UNITED FRUIT GAINED MOST

Boston Market Strong at Opening, but Became Irregular; Curb List Strong

The Boston market had a good tone at the opening and held its strength during the first hour, but showed less breadth than during the previous session and a narrower price range. A number of important stocks opened unchanged. Some issues were weak, three selling at year's lows. They were Carson Hill, International Products and Greenfield Tap. New Haven was a second-hour feature, being active and receding ½ to sold at the year's lowest for the exchange. It established a record low in New York. Among strongest issues were Alumek, Calumet and Arizona, Seneca, New Cornelia, Swift & Co. and United Fruit. They advanced from one to more than four points in the first hour. United Fruit gained the most, Carson Hill dropped more than a point. There was a better tone to coppers and parking issues.

Issues to make fractional gains included Massachusetts Gas, Ventura, Lawyers Manufacturing, Island Oil, Orpheum, Libby, Davis-Daly and Gray & Davis. Small transactions were made by Boston Elevated, Boston & Maine, United Shoe, New England Telephone, Cuban Cane, Greenfield, International Products and North Butte.

The market became irregular before the end of the morning.

CURB BECAME STRONG.

The Curb was mixed as to price movement at the opening, but after a period of irregularity developed a strong tone. Leaders were Boston & Montana, Crystal, Eureka 1 cent at 42 cents and Texada 1 cent at 45. Merrimac Development was unchanged.

Springfield, Mass., will receive proposals until noon, November 30, for a tax title loan, which it is estimated, yielded 50 pounds registered corpus per ton, equal to 2 per cent. of the ore.

VAST CAPITAL NEEDED FOR OIL DEVELOPMENT

When Henry J. Doherty addressed the American Petroleum Institute he said oil land developments of the future will require additional capital on an unheard of scale. That one of the competitive character of the oil business would make monopolization of the industry impossible. He cited statistics regarding the fiscal operations of 108 companies organized prior to 1912 and 142 companies formed since that time showed that at the close of 1919 these companies had a capital investment of $2,501,929,914. At the end of 1911 the 108 companies operating showed capital investment of $717,038,563.

Capital investment of the entire group from 1912 to 1919 increased $1,784,441,351, while the companies paid cash dividends of $906,242,775, leaving a balance of $878,579,079 of actual excess additional capital, after dividends, which went into the business in eight years.

CANADIAN FLOUR IMPORTS INCREASE

Washington, Nov. 23.—Wheat flour imports from Canada during the period from October 15 to October 31 totaled 97,624 barrels, or a rate for the month, of 162,987 barrels, an increase of the latter half of the month over the first half of 76,000 barrels, according to figures made public today by the federal trade commission.

One Hundred Investment Bargains in Railroad Bonds

In a circular prepared by one of the greatest bond authorities in this country we have just had printed, the bond situation is not only thoroughly covered, but there is a list of one hundred bargains in high grade railroad bonds yielding as high as

Ten Per Cent

Among this list are many unusual investment opportunities, and inasmuch as underlying factors are now favorable to rising bond prices, a selection of these bonds would unquestionably result in excellent market profits, in addition to an attractive income return.

The circular will be sent without obligation, together with a booklet describing a convenient method of purchasing the bonds.

Put up in either tablets or powders, as preferred.

"MIKADO" IS STILL A BIG FAVORITE

The terrible eighties, as the years between 1870 and 1880 are sometimes called because of the kind of clothes people wore, the kind of thoughts they thought, the kind of pictures they painted and the iron statues they stuck in their front gardens have one redeeming feature; the comic operas they turned out.

"Erminie" was one of these. "Mikado" was another, and most of the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas were born in that decade. These works, as regard both music and lyrics, make the musical comedy output of the present day look like a Ford as the Harvard-Yale game. When they are well done they are wonderful. They will even survive rough treatment.

"Erminie" is already settled and going strong in Boston and its fellow of the eighties, "Mikado," opened an engagement at the Boston Opera House last night, before a goodly throng of lovers of old-time operetta. The Opera House company is known as the Royal English Opera Company. It is called Royal because it was organized in California and as there is nothing royal out there except the climate, presumably it was named Royal after that.

The company contains some members of the troupe which played the Plymouth a year ago. There is the same conductor, Max Bendix, and the comedian is Jefferson de Angelis, who says he isn't a day older than De Wolf Hopper and Francis Wilson. All three of them came down through the ages with the operas they are playing in.

One of the features of the performance is the appearance of a Japanese girl named Hana Shimonumi in the role of Yum Yum. In view of the alleged mass meeting on the Common of all the Japanese in Boston to protest against the opera on the ground that it makes fun of Japan, I am surprised that Hana is taking a chance, but she doesn't seem to mind.

As a matter of fact the Mikado in the opera is a very noble fellow. He is full and dignified, with a keen sense of humor, and everything he does, including the author, treats him respectfully.

The Boston Opera House is a very large place, and the Royal English Opera Company is not a bit too attenuated, as regards orchestra and chorus, to fill it, but one cannot have everything as the Royal English Peace Commissioners observed when they grabbed all the German colonies and offered us the island of Yap. However, the folks sang pretty well, and Hertz conducted with spirit and intelligence.

Coming Events

TREMONT THEATRE—Seats go on sale today at the Tremont Theatre for the engagement, beginning next Monday, of the musical comedy, "The Sweetheart Shop," which comes fresh from nine months' successful run in New York and Chicago. The book and lyrics are by Anne Caldwell and the music is by Dr. Hugo Felix.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—As next week's attraction at the Plymouth, Oliver Morosco will present Maude Fulton in her new play, "The Humming Bird," written by Maude Fulton herself. Seats will go on sale Thursday.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—"Vogues and Vanities," is the title of the new "musical review of reviews" which F. Ray Goetz will present at the Majestic Theatre Monday night. The cast is imposing and includes Johnny Dooley, Anna Wheaten, William Kent, Edith Hallor, Clifton Webb, Robert Emmett Keane, Lester Crawford, Helen Broderick and Maurice Diamond. "Vogues and Vanities" was written by Glen MacDonough and F. Ray Goetz.

Plays That Remain

COLONIAL THEATRE—Charles Dillingham's big musical comedy success, "The Night Boat," began the second week of its engagement at the Colonial Theatre yesterday. The reception it has been given by Boston audiences indicates that they join with New York theatre-goers in the heartiest approval of the attraction.

TREMONT THEATRE—Lenore Ulric, in David Belasco's production, "The Son-Daughter," began the final week at the Tremont Theatre last evening.

GLOBE THEATRE—"Erminie" has created a vogue in theatre-dom that gives promise of breaking all records in the history of Boston theatres because of its tremendous popularity at the Globe Theatre, where Francis Wilson and De Wolf Hopper are appearing in the roles of the two thieves.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—Grant Mitchell is entertaining large and enthusiastic audiences in "The Champion," at Selwyn's Park Square Theatre. There are, by actual count, 250 laughs in this comedy, and at every performance Mr. Mitchell is called upon for a speech.

ARLINGTON THEATRE—This is the last week of Tom Wise in "The Proper Spirit" at the Arlington Theatre. The play is produced by Mrs. Henry B. Harris.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—Marjorie Rambeau began the last week of her engagement at the Majestic Theatre last night in her absorbing play, "The Sign on the Door," before a large audience.

TREMONT TEMPLE—The tenth week of the Boston run of D. W. Griffith's elaborate picturization of the old New England classic, "Way Down East," began yesterday afternoon at Tremont Temple with a capacity enthusiastic audience.

CLEVER ACTS ON BILL AT ORPHEUM

Yesterday's offerings at Loew's Orpheum Theatre included six exceptionally clever acts of vaudeville, headed by Frank Davis' presentation of a farcical oddity, "Nine O'Clock," by Howard Clarke. The amusement was wholesome and genuine.

Van and Vernon, in a nonsensical skit, "The Peach and the Stew," created much laughter. Gordon and Gordon added much to the entertainment in their series of new twists and turns, which proved to be an exhibition extraordinary.

Harry McGowan, singing and chattering comedian, won a spot in the hearts of the audience, as did also the Chilfonte sisters in their descriptive dance revue.

Cliff and Lydia, in novel aerialistic feats, also won favor. The top line photoplay, "Her Husband's Friend," showed Enid Bennett in a new type and one that fits her admirably. The last half of the week "Prinky Mrs Johnson," starring Billing Burke, will be shown in addition to new vaudeville.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE — At the Plymouth Theatre, the last performances of "Scandal" are announced for the Boston engagement coming to an end this Saturday night.

WILBUR THEATRE—Sam Bernard and Lena Burdoni continue to do their snarry, musical way in that delightful, colorful satire "As You Were" at the Wilbur. Last night began the sixth week for this attraction with no sign of lessening interest on the part of the theatregoing public.

Multiplies the salivary flow—Nature's tooth protector

Fights film in two efficient ways

Polishes so teeth glisten and film cannot easily adhere

Watch these five effects
Repeated with every application

Dental science has found ways to bring these five desired effects whenever you brush teeth.

Leading dentists everywhere advise this method now. Millions of people already employ it. Ask us to send it free to you, and see what it does in ten days. It will be a revelation.

To combat the film

The purpose is to combat film on teeth.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Old methods of teeth cleaning did not end it. So month after month, on countless teeth, it may do ceaseless damage.

Most tooth troubles are now traced to film. And those troubles, despite the tooth brush, have been constantly increasing. So film-removal is nowadays considered all-important.

It dims and destroys

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

So dental science has for years sought ways to fight that film. Efficient ways have now been found and proved by convincing tests. Authorities approve and advise them. And the teeth of millions are already being protected by them.

The methods are combined in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. And a 10-Day Tube is offered free so all may quickly know it.

Millions of white teeth

Millions now use Pepsodent. The glistening teeth seen everywhere show one thing that it means.

To children it is most important, for young teeth are most subject to decay. Men who smoke and stain the film will see conspicuous effects. Women's teeth will be made to look their best.

Quick, visible results

The benefits of Pepsodent are quick and apparent. You see and feel them every time you use it. Within ten days you'll realize well how much this new way means.

One ingredient is pepsin. Another multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. The salinity of the saliva is multiplied also, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Two factors directly attack the film. One of them keeps teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily adhere.

The film itself is twice a day combated in most effective ways.

Everyone should know

Everybody, young and old, should know of these effects. Old methods of teeth cleaning do not bring them.

Send the coupon for the 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch all the results, and the book we send will tell the meaning of them.

Do this for your sake and the children's sake. It means whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. It means results you want and which you cannot get without it.

Cut out the coupon now. This is too important to forget.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

Even the Roots of Superfluous Hair Vanish
(Entirely New Method; Works Wonders)

What is the use of merely tasing off the hair-ends and not destroying the roots of superfluous hair? Do you know that you can easily and quickly remove the hair entire, including the roots, with ordinary phelactine? Just try it! It is odorless, non-irritating, and so harmless a child could safely eat it. Far superior to depilatories, electrolysis, etc. Get a stick of phelactine today from your druggist and have the pleasure of actually removing the offending hair-roots at last—before your very eyes.—Advertisement.

Indications of Revival in New England Industries

Tanners Buying Hides in Preparation for Return of Replacement Orders; Industries "Hit" First Are Beginning to Recover; Fundamental Situation Sound

Indications that better times in the business world are at hand, are now beginning to appear. Several "robins" have made their appearance in the last few days, and optimists are making the most of them to dispell the wave of gloom. Perhaps the best sign that has appeared is a resumption in hide buying, after six months of stagnation. So that one of New England's major industdustries—shoe and leather—seems to have turned the dark corner.

Industries that were hit first are turning out 150,000 pieces of goods per week as compared with capacity of 350,000 pieces. Sales of print cloth for several weeks have been around 12,000 pieces.

Signs of Better Shoe Market

Central Leather Company and Endicott-Johnson Corporation have been in the market lately, as well as several "independent" tanners, with the result a noticeable revival in the primary end of the shoe industry.

The current buying of hides should eventually increase tanning operations, which have been running now over 10 per cent. capacity. The buying of hides now is in preparation for the inevitable return of buying by the consumer of shoes.

Sole leather is off 30 per cent. in general and can be bought as low as 49 per cent. off from former highs; upper leather is off anywhere from 35 1-3 per cent. for best grades to "make your own price" for poorest grades. Shoe factories throughout Massachusetts are running at not over 30 per cent. of capacity, necessarily throwing thousands of persons out of work.

Increase in Number Unemployed

Some idea of the unemployment situation may be gleaned from the report of the State Department of Labor for the month of September. Figures secured from 1,103 unions with a membership of 254,426, representing the principal industries and trades, show that 19.3 per cent. are out of work.

The building trades had 5.3 per cent. unemployed, boot and shoe 40.9, textiles 26.3, transportation 5.4, iron and steel 9, printing 2.5, and all others 17.1 per cent.

There has been a proportionate decrease in strikes and lockouts, only eight being recorded by the State Department since October 1.

Returns from thirty-six cities to the State department of Labor show that during October the aggregate for new buildings and alterations was but $4,568,761, compared with $6,249,883 in September, a decrease of 27.3 per cent. This decrease in building, despite the general shortage of houses and commercial buildings, has been reflected in further recessions in lumber and building materials.

Cotton Cloth Business Quiet

Not since 1907 have the cotton mills been so inactive as at present. A good example of the public boycott is contained in the experience of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company—a giant in its line. In spite of a reduction in its prices of 33 1-3 per cent. last September, the trade has not bought.

Announcement is now made that the cotton department of the Amoskeag will be closed Wednesday for the balance of the week. The worsted mill of Amoskeag has been flat since June, but the cotton department has been able to maintain a normal operating schedule.

At Fall River the mills are not

Fundamental Situation Sound

One could add to the gloomy story of shut-downs, curtailments and declining prices, but there is a law of supply and demand which should soon be working for better prices, greater employment and contentment.

The general closings have not made for increasing the supply. Retailers have been clearing their shelves as fast as possible under the circumstances, and replacements must soon be made. That is why the leather manufacturers have commenced buying hides.

There are some who predict a scramble for goods. Once buying does set in by those who have courage, others will follow and the pendulum will swing the other way. A large part of the current depression is due to "mob psychology." Like a herd of sheep. Scare one and they all stampede.

The foundation for good times is now being laid. There is plenty in the present situation to inspire confidence. The money situation has been steadily improving. That might be termed the corner stone of better business.

The country is harvesting one of the biggest crops in its history; a change in the administration of affairs at Washington is coming and that alone should inspire confidence. Couple with these facts the improvement in transportation and natural disposition of Americans to go ahead, and it is not difficult to predict better times in the business world.

PRICES ALSO DROPPING IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Washington, Nov. 23.—Business men throughout the United States, affected by falling prices and the cancellation of orders, may obtain considerable comfort from the dispatches to both State and Commerce departments from other countries received here during the last two weeks.

Not only in this country, but abroad, there is a falling off of prices, but in practically every other part of the world, from a commercial viewpoint, the labor situation is more chaotic than in America and the competition from foreign markets greater, the reports show.

RUSSIAN-U. S. TRADE MENACE STIRS BORAH

Washington, Nov. 23.—Senator William E. Borah, Republican "irreconcilible," from Idaho, let it be known here that as soon as the Senate meets, early in December, he intends to call to its attention the menace of the Russian-American trade situation. Senator Borah also made it plain that other members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have expressed themselves in a similar vein.

RUSSIA ORDERS SCHOOL BOOKS

Vanderlip Given Contract for Thirty Million During Recent Visit to Moscow

By Universal Service.

London, Nov. 23.—Russian women have the most wonderful complexions in the world and the children are the picture of health, according to Washington D. Vanderlip, who has just returned from a trade trip to Russia bringing immense orders.

In discussing his personal impressions of Moscow and Petrograd and their environs, Vanderlip declared that Russia is bringing up the healthiest generation of girls and boys in the world. They are well fed, he says, and educated as well as is possible under existing conditions.

"Lenine gave me an order for 30,000,000 school books for immediate delivery," he said. "Lenine has decreed that within the next five years all persons under sixty years of age must be able to read and write.

CARE FOR ARMY FIRST.

"The maintenance of any army of four million well disciplined troops is an immense drain upon resources but is cheerfully borne by the people, who are intensely patriotic. The army gets the first of everything, and the hospitals and children have second call upon the food. After them come the civilians. I was listed for cabbage and soup and black bread. I lost twenty pounds but I feel better. Russia is a great sanitarium for fat people. The only trouble with the food is its scarceness, but the people are healthy."

Describing the opera at Moscow Vanderlip said:

"Peasants and nobles, in rags and diamonds, sit side by side watching the most beautiful production I ever witnessed. There is nothing like it in America or Europe. Not one, but sixty Parlowas, with three hundred chorus girls, with the most wonderful scenic and lighting effects and gorgeous costumes."

CHURCHES NOT LOOTED.

Vanderlip emphasized that the churches have not been looted, as reported, but that on the contrary the population is intensely religious. There is no drunkenness, no prostitution and no illegitimacy, the State recognizing all children as equal. Moscow, he says, is orderly, but there is scarcely a policeman, and the city has doubled in population. The shops are reopening and the streets are crowded.

"I cannot say that the people are the happiest, but they are content to make their sacrifices in order to attain their own government. They want the friendship of the outside world, especially of America. The government asks America to send 5,000 engineers to Russia as soon as trade is reopened to rejuvenate the industries of the country. Russia's engineers have almost all been killed off by the war."

PEASANT IS HAPPY.

According to Vanderlip, the Russian peasant is happy. He has an allotment of land and pays for it with produce with the exception of a small tax to the government.

"Lenine has freed Russia's millions," he says, "and is building up a new nation. England gave Lenin, whom she cordially hated in Civil War time, a statue in the Abbey of Westminster, and the same thing will happen in the case of Lenine fifty years from now."

America's Fisheries—An Undeveloped Industry of Great Possibilities

In its rich fisheries the United States possesses an undeveloped natural resource which needs only organization, capital and brains to make it one of the nation's greatest industries.

The American fisheries have hitherto been conducted so inefficiently that fish as an important food staple has failed to win the nation-wide popularity and market it deserves. So crude has been the organization of our fisheries, particularly as regards distribution, that fish in sufficient quantities and of good quality has been unobtainable regularly by much of our inland population.

The U. S. Bureau of Fisheries states that there is a huge unsatisfied demand for fish, especially in the Middle West and South. An enormously rich field awaits the wide-awake concern which enters the fish industry properly organized and equipped. In England, where twenty-five years ago the fisheries were in a chaotic state as here now, more capital is profitably employed in the fisheries than in the American beef industry. The American beef supply is decreasing, and the consumption of fish will constantly grow.

The problems of handling and distributing fish and beef are identical, and progressive concerns are meeting them the right way, equipped with ample capital, fleets of steam trawlers, big central plants and excellent merchandising systems. All honor to these companies for their far-sighted progressiveness!

Miss Pauline Mason, the popular dancing teacher of Malden, reports that tickets are selling fast for the entertainment and dance to be given by her, with the assistance of her pupils, at Odd Fellows' Hall, Malden, Tuesday evening, December 14. Miss Mason says that all of her pupils are glad to give their services in aid of such a worthy cause.

Dorothy L. Glover, captain of Troops 4 and 7, Girl Scouts of Roxbury, sent a contribution of $6. This was the first contribution from this organization. Accompanying the donation was the following letter from Miss Glover:

"I enclose check for $6 for the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund. Five dollars is the contribution of Troop 7, Roxbury Girl Scouts, and $1 the contribution of Troop 4, Girl Scouts. With best wishes for the success of the Christmas Basket Fund, I am—"

A check for $10 was sent by O. A. Gilbert of the Boston shipping Brokerage Company. He wrote: "It is certainly a good work, and a very worthy cause."

The Montgomery, Brooks Company of No. 143 Columbus avenue sent a contribution of $23.50 which represented a collection made by the employes of the firm.

"Equality" wrote: "I am pleased to enclose my little bit knowing how much real good you are doing. Five dollars this time. I hope to do better next year."

LAUDS AMERICAN'S WORK.

Helen Lundholm wrote: "Please accept my little gift. I gladly give; it will make me happy to think I can make others happy." This is a fine spirit. Making other people happy is one of the really worth-while things.

Charles E. McDuffy wrote: "Enclosed please find $1, my small part towards helping someone who is less fortunate than myself. I am very glad to do this little act. Hoping I can do more next year and the years to follow, I am —"

P. D. Warren wrote: "Mrs. Warren and I are only too pleased to give our mite to so worthy a cause. The American deserves great credit for undertaking and carrying through such a stupendous piece of work. I am pleased to state that you can depend on us every year to no our humble part. Enclosed you will find check for $5 to help the cause along."

Barbara and "Buddy" Stein wrote: "Enclosed please find $2 for the worthy cause. I wish we could afford to send a great many times more. We could not enjoy our Christmas dinner if we had forgotten all about others not so fortunate as we."

Ima Corkey wrote: "Please accept enclosed $5 in memory of MacSwiney, Fitzgerald and Murphy. Lord rest their souls! 'And the tear that we shed, though in secret it rolls, shall long keep their memory green in our souls.'"

A contribution of $12.47 was added to the fund by Frank Cunningham of the Theatrical Stage Employes Union, Local No. 11. This sum represented the collection made at a ball in Mechanics Building. Miss Grace Yeomans of No. 54 Falmouth street was largely responsible for the collection of this sum.

GRIDIRON FANS TO HELP.

A collection in aid of the Basket Fund will be made Thanksgiving afternoon at Tech Field, Brookline, during the football game by the Trojans and Adrians, for the championship of Roxbury. It is expected that 5000 people will attend the gridiron battle.

Eye Specialist and Medical Author Report on Wonderful Remedy To Strengthen Eyesight

Say It Strengthens Eyesight 50% in One Week's Time in Many Instances

New York—Dr. Smith, a well known eye specialist, and Dr. Judkins, a widely read physician and medical author, make the following reports after a thorough test of a popular remedy for the eyes:

Says Dr. Smith: "When my attention was first called to it I was inclined to be skeptical. But it is a rule of mine to give every new treatment a chance to prove its value. Having specialized in eye work for many years I feel qualified to express an intelligent opinion on remedies for the eyes. Since this one has created such a sensation I welcomed the opportunity to test it. I began to use it in my practice a little over a year ago and I am frank to say that some of the results I have accomplished with Bon-Opto not only astonish myself, but also other physicians with whom I have talked about it, and I advise every thoughtful physician to give Bon-Opto the same careful trial I have and there is no doubt in my mind that he will come to the conclusion I have, that it opens the door for the cure of many eye troubles which have heretofore been difficult to cope with. I have had individuals who had worn glasses for years tell me they have dispensed with them through the use of Bon-Opto. In my own practice I have seen it strengthen the eyesight more than 50 per cent. in one week's time. I have also used it with surprising results in cases of work-strained eyes, pink eye, inflamed lids, catarrhal conjunctivities, smarting, painful, aching, itching eyes, eyes weakened from colds, smoke, sun, dust and wind, watery eyes, blurred vision, and, in fact, many other conditions too numerous to mention in this report. A new and striking case that has just been brought to my attention is that of a girl 12 years old. Two prominent eye specialists, after a thorough examination, decided, according to her father, that in order to save the sight of her right eye, the left must be removed. While awaiting an opportunity for the operation and still undecided as to its wisdom, her father was told it would do no harm to use Bon-Opto. In less than three days a marked improvement was noticed. At the end of a week the inflammation had entirely disappeared, and at the end of six weeks the eye was pronounced saved. Just think what the saving of that eye means to this little girl! Another case is that of a lady 93 years old. She came to me with dull vision and extreme inflammation of the lids and the conjunctiva was almost raw. After two weeks' use of Bon-Opto the lids were absolutely normal and her eyes are as bright as many a girl of 16."

Dr. Judkins, a well known physician and medical author, formerly chief of clinics in the Union General Hospital, Boston, Mass., and formerly house surgeon at the New England Eye and Ear Infirmary of Portland, Maine, says:

"I have found oculists too prone to operate and opticians too willing to prescribe glasses, while neglecting the simple formulas which form the basis of Bon-Opto, which in my opinion, is a remarkable remedy for the cure and prevention of many eye disorders. Its success in developing and strengthening the eyesight will soon make eyeglasses old-fashioned and the use of Bon-Opto as common as that of the tooth brush. I am thoroughly convinced from my experience with Bon-Opto that it will strengthen the eyesight at least 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances."

Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses and many who wear glasses will be glad to know that according to Drs. Smith and Judkins there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable remedy and many who once wore glasses say they have laid them aside. One man says after using it:

"I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses" but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses. Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye-strain, caused by overworked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years, both for distance and close work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long-distances glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited in this easy manner. Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Dissolve one tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and use from two to four times a day. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind have thus saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or mild eye disease, and it is one of the few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for such cases. I have also noticed that it relieves the period in which the use of a patent medicine of a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It is dispensed under guaranty by all good druggists in Boston and vicinity.

BIG FOOTBALL BATTLES ON GRIDIRON SLATED FOR THE HOLIDAY

PITTSBURGH AND PENN STATE CLASH IS FEATURE

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Football's spotlight will strive to poke its way through the smoke enveloped city of Pittsburgh on Thursday, for of all the battles scheduled for Thanksgiving Day, the meeting of the University of Pittsburgh and Penn State College carries the greatest import.

Neither team has yet been beaten, although each has been once tied, and both number among their victims some of the sturdiest aggregations in the East and South. Pittsburgh has taken the measure of West Virginia, Washington & Jefferson, Pennsylvania and Georgia Tech. Penn State has numbered Dartmouth, Pennsylvania and other strong elevens among its victims. While Syracuse held Pittsburgh to a tie and Lehigh did the same to Penn State, each has a strong claim for a front seat in football rating, and the winner of Thursday's clash at Pittsburgh undoubtedly will consider itself the Eastern champion.

Pittsburgh Is Made the Favorite

Pittsburgh will rule the favorite in this contest, and on its past record this favor is deserved. The Panthers boast two remarkable football players in Halfback Davies and Centre Stein, and Coach Warner always can be counted upon to furnish something interesting in an attack. The State College eleven has no outstanding stars, neither has it any outstanding weak spots, but Bezdeck believes he has a very able machine and not a few share that belief.

Last year, for the first time in a long while, Penn State won its game with Pittsburgh, and will go into Thursday's clash unbothered by the bugbear of defeat. But Pittsburgh is a better team than last year, while Penn State, without the services of Higgins, its old All-America end, is not quite so formidable, which means that Penn State's chances are not quite so rosy as many Penn State rooters believe.

Cornell Meets Penn in Philadelphia

The Cornell-Pennsylvania annual at Philadelphia is another of the important games listed for Thanksgiving Day, and the records made by these rivals would indicate a game that will be well worth the watching, although not up to the pre-war standard in quality.

Each team has this year been handled by a new head coach, and each has met defeat in meeting with the more important rivals. Both elevens suffered at the hands of Dartmouth, but both immediately began strong comebacks and both should be at the peak of their power the day after tomorrow.

Two More Undefeated Teams Risk Records

In addition to Penn State and Pittsburgh, two other undefeated teams risk their records on Thanksgiving Day, the Dame meeting Michigan Aggies and Virginia Military Institute clashing with its traditional rival, Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

In Massachusetts, the single college contest of importance is the Holy Cross-Fordham game at Worcester, in which Cleo O'Donnell's scoring array rules the favorite.

Local football attention, other than that concerned in the many interesting high school contests will have the annual Battery A- First Corps Cadet game at the Stadium as a source of entertainment.

B. C. WORKS OUT IN RAINSTORM

Coach Cavanaugh Whipping Squad in Top Form for Georgetown Game

Coach Cavanaugh showed utter disregard for the inclement weather and subjected his Boston College squad to a long workout in the rain. He occupied part of the session in explaining the mistakes in Saturday's battle against Marcella. The inability of the Boston players to stop the overhead attack of the westerners displeased Cav, and the defects will be remedied.

Jimmy Fitzpatrick was out in uniform and spent most of the session in punting. Cav ordered white pigskins, and they stood out sharply against the dark sky as they soared up in the air from Fitzy's toe.

Jack Hoaphy was not out, as he is suffering from a bad knee. He was noticeably lame after the contest Saturday, and yesterday the knee swelled and the muscles contused.

Roper Finds Common Fine Spot to Train

By JACK CONWAY

Captain Bob Roper, Chicago heavyweight, who meets Bob Martin, A. E. F. champion, in a ten-round bout at the Fanenil A. C.'s show at Mechanics Building tomorrow night, has selected historic Boston Common as a training camp.

"I have heard fighters say there was not a suitable training spot in Boston," declared Roper today. "After receiving this information, I made a trip to Boston Common. I wanted to see this historic place.

"I decided right off the bat that I would do my training on the Common. I started my work by running five miles around the playground. I then worked on some volleys after which I punched the bag. I was obliged to furnish my own punching bag. I then did some boxing with a couple of big fellows who volunteered to work with me.

"I feel sure I'll beat Martin. You see we've already met twice in the ring. I was awarded a judges' decision over Bob at Toledo the night before the Dempsey-Willard affair, while I bested him in a no-decision match at Cleveland last Summer."

Roper Big Factor in Heavyweight Class

Roper is rapidly becoming one of the biggest factors in the heavyweight class, and the meeting with Martin is going to mean something in the heavyweight ranks.

Which calls to mind the really remarkable record this Roper chap has hung up since getting before the public as a fighter. He has been in the boxing sport for a matter of but twenty-four months, and in that time has taken part in exactly thirty-one ring contests.

Bob made up his mind to find out in a hurry whether he was any good at boxing, figuring that if he wasn't no amount to anything the sooner he found it out the better he would be off.

He went ahead on that basis and almost the first thing he did was to match himself with one of the toughest birds in the whole business.

Roper comes readily by his title of captain, having served seven years in the regular army, rising from a plain buck private to the high rank.

Served Seven Years in Regular Army

His served through until the armistice was signed, but didn't see service overseas because his superior officers regarded him as such a capable executive that he was used in the different camps in this country.

His first pro battle was in Minneapolis on January 24, 1919, just one month after he got out of army service. His opponent on that occasion was Garry Rhodes, whom he easily defeated in eight rounds.

This was a big encouragement for the captain, and he announced himself willing to meet any one and all comers. That's how he came to get the Gibbons match.

A brief list of some of the men he has tackled indicates this, for on his list show two great battles with Harry Greb, two with Gibbons, two with Gunboat Smith, Bob Martin twice, and single matches with Hugh Walker, Boy McCormick, Chuck Wiggins and Charley Weinert.

In the past six months Roper has received decisions over Homer Smith, Frank Moran, Melchior, Gunboat Smith and Bill Brennan.

In his last three bouts Roper has won decisively from Gunboat Smith, Tony Melchior and four, weeks ago, knocked out Soldier Jones of Toronto, claimant of the Canadian heavyweight championship in eight rounds at Saginaw, Mich.

Reservations for the Fanenil Club's show may be obtained at Room E, No. 32 Court street.

SCHOOLBOY SPORTS

COACH SUTHERLAND of Dedham High is trying to arrange matters to bring over Proviso High of Maywood, Ill., for a post-season game to be played some time in December.

* * *

THE papers of Chicago are still talking about the wonderful exhibition of football given by Tansey and Gilbert of Mayfield, Ky., although the Headers went down to defeat, it was a glorious one.

* * *

PLANS are being formulated for the big affair that takes place down at Swampscott on Thanksgiving Day, when Marblehead journeys over to mantle town. Two bands have been hired for the occasion and the songs and cheers used by both sides are being rehearsed daily.

* * *

WHITMAN High won the championship of the Old Colony League by its win over Hingham last week. With it goes the record of 19 straight wins for this team. Capt. Millett, Ward, Walton, Ellis and Lundrigan are a few of the stars who helped attain this wonderful showing.

* * *

EVERYTHING is now set for the much talked of Haverhill High-Newton High post season game. The battle will be staged at the Haverhill Stadium next Saturday. Preparations are now being made to handle one of the largest crowds that have ever attended an interscholastic contest.

ISSY ZARAKOV'S 75-yard run for Cambridge Latin in the game with Newton gave his team the distinction of being the only one to tie the Garden City boys.

* * *

DORCHESTER HIGH still carries that jinx on all out-of-town trips that it has made this season. While playing in these parts it does very well, but when playing outside of Boston it has yet to come home with the bacon.

* * *

DEDHAM HIGH had its first taste of defeat at the hands of Hyde Park outfit last week. Collins' beautiful drop kick from the 38-yard line couldn't stave off defeat.

ALEXANDER TO STAY WITH CHICAGO CUBS

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Officials of the Chicago Cubs vigorously denied today that a trade is in prospect whereby Grover Alexander, pitcher, Charles Hollocher, shortstop, and a couple of unnamed Cubs were to be traded to Heinie Groh, Dutch Heuther, Earle Neale and Larry Kopf.

"We wouldn't trade Alexander and Hollocher for the whole Cincinnati team," Johnny Seys, secretary of the Cubs, said.

It was admitted, however, that several deals are on the fire by which it is hoped to give Johnny Evers, new Cubs' manager, a stronger team to pilot than Fred Mitchell, his predecessor, had.

URGES LIMIT IN GOLF TOURNEYS

Congestion Too Great, Especially Over 9-Hole Courses, Says Dan Horan

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

Although it will be some time before the opening event on the 1921 program of the Massachusetts Golf Association is held, this is the season when club officials are considering what sort of an open tournament, if any, they wish to have next season.

Dan Horan State handicapper, who attended practically all of the open events on this year's schedule, is convinced that there should be some manner of limiting the starters in nine-hole handicap tournaments on nine-hole courses. His reports congestion at these meetings so great that much of the enjoyment of playing is taken away.

Would Have Two Classes of Players

Horan thinks that clubs inviting golfers to such tournaments should restrict the field to players of 13 handicap or under, or limit it to players of 13 handicap or more. He declares that a club might invite the low handicap men one year and the high handicap men the next year, or hold a two-day event, with the low handicap players eligible for play one of the days, and the high handicap men the second day.

The tournament season generally opens with an 18-hole handicap tournament at Lexington. The field has been increasing each year and last Spring it was so great that some players were unable to start play and those who did were subjected to a long series of tedious waits before completing their rounds. It is too much to turn all the open tournament golfers into a 9-hole course on a holiday.

A Benefit to High Scorers

Horan also is of the opinion that if a number of open tournaments were limited to players of thirteen handicap and more, that this would stimulate considerable interest in open events among golfers who never participate in an open because they do not consider themselves good enough to play in the same event with the low handicap golfers. This is an excellent suggestion and would undoubtedly bring many golfers into open tournament competitions.

Open tournaments are held for the purpose of building up a community of golf spirit and of giving all the members of the colony an opportunity to enjoy a game over foreign courses. At present the low handicap players benefit much more than the other players by these open events. Any move to widen the scope of the usefulness of open events would be a good thing for the game in Massachusetts.

National Field Needs Clipping

While on the subject of handicaps Horan has something to say concerning the qualifying field in the National Championship tournaments. Once again, he was not far off the mark. Dan declared that a great many of the amateurs of the United States were not as fussy as Massachusetts is in giving out credentials which entitle them to enter the National, and for this reason the qualifying field has been cluttered up with a number of players who should not have been permitted to enter.

The National field is so large now that it requires two 18-hole courses and all day to get it down to a single day to complete the qualifying round. The time is coming when the United States Golf Association will have to make some regulations which will cause other sections to be as conservative as Massachusetts is in nominating players for the championship. The matter will probably be discussed at the annual meeting in January.

Alex Campbell to Have Indoor School

Alex Campbell has selected a location at No. 258 Washington street where he will conduct a golf school. He will be assisted in giving lessons and in club making by Davy Brown and Eddie Keefe. Alex hopes to open his shop December 1.

Harry Bowler and Donald Vinton will open for business at their Hawley st. indoor golf shop and school December 1.

PENN SQUAD WORKS OUT ON MUDDY FIELD

Philadelphia, Nov. 23.—Penn gridmen braved rain and mud to hold a scrimmage on Franklin Field. It was the first workout in direct preparation for the Cornell game Thanksgiving day, which will be played later at the Whitemarsh Country Club.

The thirty-five men will remain at Whitemarsh, practising on the links and playing in the country air, until tomorrow morning, when they will return to haunt Franklin Field for the last time.

Cotton Mill Reopens

Brunswick, Me., Nov. 23.—The Cabot Cotton Mill has resumed operations. It was closed by labor troubles August 23, and the difficulty the concern with its help were recently adjusted.

Haverhill and Newton Practice in Rain

Preparations for the Haverhill High-Newton High football contest at the Haverhill Stadium are going merrily on, despite the inclement weather. Both teams were worked out in the rain, and showed considerable skill in holding on to the slippery football. Both teams are undefeated but Haverhill's record is slightly better. Its record being unbroken by a tie as was Newton's last saturday.

While no announcement has yet been made regarding the officials who will have charge of the game, it is understood that Dr. Edward J. O'Brien of Tufts has been agreed upon as referee.

Parker to Pick All-America Football Teams Monday

Remember the All-America teams Charles E. Parker, the American's football expert, selected at the close of the 1919 gridiron season?

Well, in next Monday's issues of this paper Parker will again announce his football honor elevens. Don't miss them.

Throughout the season he has been gathering information that will enable him to name the strongest possible elevens in college football. Personal observation of many of the Eastern and a number of the Southern teams, a complete file of newspaper accounts of Middle West, Pacific Coast, Southern and Eastern contests, and thorough reports from able football men in each section who have observed the work of the teams of such sections furnish Parker with the most complete data possible, and enable him to place in his first, second and third All-America lineups men who have really qualified for such honors.

Except for one year—and that was the year Walter Camp named a coach as one of his honor players—Parker's first eleven's have never varied in more than three positions from the teams selected by the farfamed editor of the Football Guide and Rules Book.

Watch for Parker's teams in next Monday's American.

EAGAN TO LEAD YALE BOXERS

A. E. F. Champion Again Honored; Will Represent University in Heavyweight Class

New Haven, Nov. 23.—Edward P. Eagan, who won the middleweight title in the recent Olympic boxing matches, has been re-elected captain of the Yale boxing team just organized. He will box as a heavyweight.

The team has full approval of the faculty, and will arrange matches with other colleges. Albert Into, the football player, is a candidate for the team.

YOUNG POOLER SHOWS HAMMERING HOWIE HOW

Fall River, Nov. 23.—Young Pooler of Bangor, Me., won the decision over Hammering Howie of Woonsocket at the Young Men's Christian Academy A. A. Young Kansas of Providence and Young Manty of New Bedford went 10 fast rounds to a draw. Rod Barnett of Fall River won from Young Oliver of Newport in eight rounds, and the Dixie Kid defeated Frankie Nelson in six rounds. Both are local lads.

BOOM B. C. FOR COAST GAME

Record Entities Maroon and Gold to Pasadena Trip, Supporters Say

Boston College will represent the East in the football game at the carnival of Roses in Pasadena, Cal., on New Year's Day if plans now being made by the supporters of the Maroon and Gold team go through.

The idea has been offered to the Princeton team and while no answer has yet been made, several of the faculty of the New Jersey institution have unofficially expressed disapproval of the idea.

That clears the road for some other Eastern team, and, as the Boston College supporters point out, no eleven in the East has had a better record to date than the Cavanaugh drilled outfit. The fact that B. C. made three touchdowns against Yale, while Harvard was unable to cross the Blue's goal line, is being given especial prominence in the arguments.

Gibbs Kayos St. Hilaire

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 23.—Woonsocket Joe Gibbs knocked out Young St. Hilaire of Somersworth in the ninth round at the Belfast A. C.

What the Story Is About

How Jenny, the daughter of Black Jerry Malone, the keeper of a low dance hall in New York, was rescued in the very nick of time from her environment and introduced to exclusive New York society through the influence of a former crook is the thrilling basis of this new story, by the author of "Mary Regan." The novel tells mainly of her adventures in the second of the two worlds through which her amazing career takes her, where reminders of her past appear, and the result is many thrilling and dramatic episodes.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN offers $5,000 in gold for photographs of lovely girls. To the girl declared by the judges to be the loveliest girl in New England, the American will pay $3,000 in gold. To the next girl in merit, $1,000 in gold. There will be two third prizes of $500 each. In awarding the prizes the judges will have in mind Arthur Brisbane's definition of beauty. Mr. Brisbane says beauty is "intelligence in a fine setting." The judges will study the photographs, first for intelligence, second for health and third for physical beauty. There are no strings attached. Just send in the photograph of your wife, sweetheart, sister or friend. All photographs will be given careful treatment and will be returned when the contest is over. Address all mail to "Loveliest Girl Editor," Boston American, P. O. Box 239, Boston 8, Mass.

EIGHT-YEAR-OLD GIRL WINS FAME AS ARTIST. Eight years seems to be the age at which famous personages "arrive" these days. The latest prodigy is Miss Violet Radtz, daughter of a well known portrait painter of Philadelphia. Violet has apparently inherited her father's talent and then some for she has had eight drawings accepted by the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. The drawing at the left is Violet's impression of how she looks.

BRUSILOFF SEES CIVIL WAR END

Wrangel's Collapse Means Peace for Russia, Says Famous General

Copyright, 1920, by International News Service.

Moscow, Nov. 20, by Wireless to Berlin, Nov. 23.—"Civil war in Russia appears to be approaching its end as a result of the decisive victory of the Soviet army over General Wrangel on the Crimean front," said General Brusiloff today.

General Brusiloff was made one of the most famous cavalry generals of the old Imperialistic regime in Russia. He led the final successful drive of the Russians against the Austro-Germans in the World War.

After the collapse of the Kerensky government General Brusiloff cast his lot with the Soviet and has been one of the military advisers of the people's commissary of war. He lives in Moscow with his wife and nephew in a comfortable but plain home. His complete analysis of the present military situation in Russia follows:

WRANGEL AIDED POLES.

"General Wrangel could never under any circumstances by himself manage the Soviet government. His principal role was to aid the Poles. It was due to Wrangel that the Poles won their military successes.

"When the war with Poland was finished Wrangel's part was finished also. He was then abandoned by France.

"Wrangel managed to weaken our front against Poland because we had to concentrate for protection in South Russia.

"Even if Wrangel's intentions had been honest he could never have done anything for Russia. I pity very much the officers who were misled by him. All they did was to give more territory to Poland and spill much blood on both sides."

10,000 REDS SLAIN.

General Brusiloff was told that the latest casualty reports from the front showed that 10,000 of the best troops of the Soviet army were slaughtered in one day's fighting while the Reds were storming Wrangel's defences at Perekop at the northern end of the Crimean peninsula.

General Brusiloff was asked if he thought the anti-Bolshevik forces under General Petlura and General Balachovitch could menace the security of the Soviets. The veteran smiled as he replied:

"The first few of a successful general can have an army. So far as I know there is no army left to fight against the Red Army. As for Petlura, I know him slightly. He never was a military man. He was connected solely with the Zemstvos."

"Do you think Poland will again go to war against Soviet Russia?" General Brusiloff was asked.

"Great Britain and France want a strong Poland, but if the Poles are clever they will realize that they are strong enough."

Dave shook his head.

"Forget it, I guess you know what Galt House is? That's where women like me can go when we get all played out and there's nothing left in the game—it's on River Street. Maybe you've been there."

Hodder nodded.

"Well," she continued, "Ferguson pays a lot of money to keep that going, and gets his name in the papers. He has to contribute to hospitals where some of us die—and it's all advertised. He forks out to the church. Now, I put it to you, why don't he sink some of that money where it belongs—in living wages? Because there's nothing in it for him—that's why."

The rector looked at her in silence. He had not suspected her of so much intellect. He glanced about the apartment at the expensive portiers flung over the sofa; at the gaudy sofa cushions, two of which bore the names of well-known certain colleges. The gas log was almost hidden by dried palm leaves, a cigarette stump lay on the fender; on the mantel were a dozen several photographs of men and at the other side an open door revealed a bedroom.

"This is a nice place, ain't it?" she observed. "I furnished it when I was on velvet—nothing was too good for me. Money in the champagne when you take the cork out, it won't keep. I was rich once. It was lovely while it lasted," she added, with a sigh. "I've struck the down trail. I oughtn't, by rights, to be here fooling with you. There's nothing in it." She glanced at the clock. "I ought to get busy."

As the realization of her meaning came to him, he quivered.

"Is there no way but that?" he asked, in a low voice.

"Say, you're not a-goin' to preach, are you?"

"No," he answered, "God forbid! I was not asking the question of you."

She stared at him.

"Of who, then "

He was silent.

"You've left me at the station. But on the level, you don't seem to know much, that's a fact. You don't think the man who owns these flats is in it for charity? Simple ladies' like me, have to give up. And then there are other little grafts that wouldn't interest you. What church do you come from anyway?"

"You mentioned it a little while ago."

"St. John's!" She leaned back against the piano and laughed unrestrainedly. "That's a good one, to think how straight I've been talking to you."

"I'm much obliged to you," he said.

Again she gazed at him, now plainly perplexed.

"What are you giving me?"

"I mean what I say," he answered. "I am obliged to you for telling me things I didn't know. And I appreciate—your asking me to stay."

She was sitting straight now, her expression changed, her breath came more rapidly, her lips parted as she gazed at him.

"Do you know," she said, "I haven't had anybody speak to me like that for four years." Her voice betrayed excitement, and differed in tone, and she had cast off unconsciously the vulgarity of speech. At that moment she seemed remindful of what she might have been; and he found himself going through an effort at reconstruction.

"Like what?" he asked.

"Like a woman," she answered vehemently.

"My name is John Hodder," he said, "and I live in the parish house, next door to the church. I should like to be your friend, if you will let me. If I can be of any help to you now, or at any other time, I shall feel happy. I promise not to preach," he added.

She got up abruptly, and went to the window. And when she returned to him again, it was with something of the old bravado.

"You'd better leave me alone, I'm no good," she said. "I'm much obliged to you, but I don't want any charity or probation houses in mine. And honest work's a thing of the past for me—even if I could get a job. Nobody would have me. But if they would, I'd rather die than work any more. I've got out of the hang of it." With a swift, and deceptive movement she crossed the room, opened a cabinet on the wall, revealing a bottle and glasses.

"So you're bent upon going—downhill?" he said.

"What can you do to stop it?" she retorted defiantly. "Give me Religion—I guess you'd tell me. Religion's all right for those on top, but say, it would be a joke if I got it. There ain't any danger. But if I did, I wouldn't pay room-rent and board."

He sat mute. Once more the truth overwhelmed, the folly of his former optimism arose to mock him. What he beheld now, in its true aspect, was a disease of which civilization he had championed. * * *

She took the bottle from the cupboard and laid it on the table.

"What's the difference?" she demanded. "It's all over in a little while, anyway. I guess you'd tell me there was a hell. But if that's so, some of your church folks'll broil, too. I'll take my chance on it, if they will." She looked at him, half in defiance, half in friendliness, across the table. "Say, you mean all right, but you're only wastin' time here. You can't do me any good. I tell you, and I've got to get busy."

"May we not at least remain friends?" he asked, after a moment.

Her laugh was a little harsh.

"What kind of friendship would that be? You, a minister, and me a woman on the town?"

"If I can stand it, I should think you might."

"Well, I can't stand it," she answered.

He got up, and held out his hand. She stood seemingly irresolute, and then took it.

"Good night," he said.

"Good night," she repeated nonchalantly.

As he went out of the door she called after him:

"Don't be afraid I'll worry the kid!"

The stale odor of cigarette smoke with which the dim corridor was charged intoxicated, threatened to overpower him. It seemed to be the reek of evil itself. A closing door had a sinister meaning. He hurried; obscurity reigned below—the light in the hall having been put out; fumbled for the doorknob, and once in the street took a deep breath and mopped his brow; but he had not proceeded half a block before he hesitated, retraced his steps, re-entered the vestibule and stooped to peer at the cards under the speaking tubes. Cheaply printed in large script was the name of his tenant of the second floor rear—Miss Kate Marcy.

In crossing Tower street he was frightened by the sharp clanging of a great electric car that roared past him, aflame with light. His brain had momentarily ceased to work, and he stumbled at the curb, for he was very tired. The events of the day no longer differentiated themselves in his mind, but lay, a composite weight, upon his heart. At length he reached the silent parish house, climbed the stairs and searched in his pocket for the key of his rooms. The lock yielded, but while feeling for the switch he tripped and almost fell over an obstruction on the floor.

The flooding light revealed his traveling bags—he had left them, packed and ready to go to the station.

CHAPTER XIII.

Winterbourne.

I.

HODDER fell asleep from sheer exhaustion, awaking during the night at occasional intervals to recall physical pains of which the events of the day before were reflected, but caricatured and distorted. Alison Parr was talking to the woman in the cell. And both were changed, and yet he identified both: and on another occasion he saw a familiar figure surrounded by romping, ragged children—a figure which turned out to be Elder Parr's!

Finally he was aroused by what seemed a summons from the unknown — the prolonged morning whistle of the shoe factory. For a while he lay as one benumbed by the gradual realization that ensued might be likened to the straining of stiffened wounds. Little by little he reconstructed, until the process became unbearable, and then rose from his bed with one object in mind—to go to Horace Bentley. At first he seized upon the excuse that Mr. Bentley would wish to hear the verdict of Dr. Jarvis, but immediately abandoned it as dishonest, acknowledging the true reason, that in all the world the presence of this one man alone could assuage in some degree the terror in his soul. For the first time in his life, since childhood, he knew a sense of utter dependence upon another human being. He felt no shame, would make no explanation for his early visit.

He turned up Tower, deliberately avoiding Dalton Street in its lower part, reached Mr. Bentley's door. The wrinkled, benevolent old darky actually seemed to radiate something of the personality with which he had so long been associated, and Hodder was conscious of a surge of relief, a return of confidence at sight of him. Yes, Mr. Bentley was at home, in the dining room. The rector said he would wait, and not disturb him.

"He done tole me to bring you out, sah, if you come," said Sam.

"He expects me?" exclaimed Hodder, with a shock of surprise.

"That's what he done tole me, sah, to ax you kindly for to step out when you come."

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Go to Mechanics Hall Friday Night

To Celebrate the Obsequies of the League of Nations

America has passed through two very great, very fundamental crises since the bell in the belfry of Liberty Hall, Philadelphia, on the Fourth of July, 1776, announced to the world the tidings that the republic of the United States had been born. The first crisis led to the Civil War. Americans had to settle the great question whether we should be "one and inseparable" or divided into States "dissevered, discordant, belligerent." It took four years of the bloodiest and most destructive war ever known to settle that question right. We celebrate the settlements of the Civil War every year with great solemnity and gratitude.

Now we have just passed through another great crisis. We have engaged in a political struggle without bloodshed and without the destruction of property to decide the question which had in it quite as great a change in the basic character of the nation and portend of even greater bloodshed and destruction. We had to decide whether, flinging away all the advice of all our great ancestors and the charts and compass by which our ship of state has been guided for 140 years, we should embark upon unknown seas of foreign intrigue and become the escort of empire ships leaking in every plank, rotten from the violation of every principle of American, seamanship, full of slaves, that are kicking open their seams and crying for rescue.

We have decided that we will not fling away the policies of our fathers, that we will keep our old charts and our compass and we will sail the seas that we know, and we will not undertake in advance to escort to safety any ship bearing contraband of civilization, carrying slaves in her hold, oppressed and unwilling people, who are ready in their sublime discontent to scuttle the ship and go down with it rather than endure slavery longer.

We have decided that we will reserve to ourselves the right to deal with each case as it arises.

We have repudiated the League of Nations at the election which stood at the parting of the ways. One step the wrong way could never have been retrieved.

We want in Boston to celebrate the victory of good judgment and loyalty to American ideals and the capacity of American democracy to afford the settlement of an issue so critical without violence or commotion. A great meeting at Mechanics Hall will be held on Friday evening, November 26th, to celebrate the great event, and some of the ablest civilian soldiers—generals in the struggle—will address us at that meeting, men who are battle-scarred, but who have come through clean:

Senators Walsh of Massachusetts, Reed of Missouri, Gore of Oklahoma, and Governor Bartlett of New Hampshire, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives of Massachusetts will preside.

How Four Longwood Girls Helped Along a Hospital

And the Example They Set Fifty Years Ago to Be Followed Now and Always by Those Who Love Children

More than fifty years ago the First Annual Report of the Children's Hospital, acknowledging one year's gifts to the little seed in Rutland street which has grown to be the great tree near the Harvard Medical School, chronicled a gift of twenty-two dollars from "four little girls of Longwood."

From that day until this, little girls of Longwood and other districts have been thoughtful of the Children's Hospital. From time to time, it is true, the institution has geen generously aided by the munificence of the Ameses, Appletons, Bremers, Hunnewells, Searses, Thayers, Winthrops—to name them all would be to print a list of our "old" families—but steadily every year there have come thousands of smaller remembrances from modest followers of the "four little girls of Longwood."

In the second or third year of its humble beginning in the South End the Hospital was pressed for funds. Nobody was hopeless. Said one annual report, in those modest early Seventies:

"We do not believe that such an institution would willingly be let die for want of a few thousand dollars per annum. We cannot believe that the continued care of these little invalids is a matter of unconcern to the benevolent hearts of the good people around us."

That was when the hospital had treated 133 patients in a twelvemonth.

Within the past year the number of admissions to the Children's Hospital was above 4,000. There were 3,440 operations. In the Out Patient Department there were 40,200 treatments.

The Hospital needs $2,250,000, which will place it in the neighborhood of Comfortable Street. The Fund Committee has established offices at No. 97 Milk street. The treasurer is Mr. S. Huntington Wolcott.

As was said so long ago:

WE CANNOT BELIEVE THAT THE CONTINUED CARE OF THESE LITTLE ONES IS A MATTER OF UNCONCERN TO THE BENEVOLENT HEARTS OF THE GOOD PEOPLE AROUND US.

And, oh, men and women, brothers and sisters, there ARE benevolent hearts everywhere, as no one knows better than we who act as YOUR messengers every year in the matter of the Christmas Baskets.

Only one thing would please the American more than to be the instrument through which the Children's Hospital and its urgent needs might receive another gift as generous as the Francis W. Hunnewell donation of $200,000, on the occasion of the erection of the present buildings.

That would be to reach the hearts of FOUR THOUSAND GROUPS of boys and girls and men and women everywhere and inspire [illegible] emulate the example set so modestly more than fifty years ago by "four little girls of Longwood."

More Truth Than Poetry

The Oldest Game in the World

By S. E. KISER

WHEN Antony began to smile
On Egypt's queenly daughter
She doubtless made him wait a while
And scorned the gifts he brought 'er.
We may be sure that at the start
She shrank from his embrace
And tried to bruise his eager heart—
Such always is the case.
But when he turned to leave her there
She probably relented
Enough to say that she would ne'er
Consent, and then consented.

WHEN Abelard met Heloise
She may have made him gloomy
By saying, "Keep your distance, please;
You're still a stranger to me."
We may assume that she denied
That she could learn to care,
When, coaxing her, at first, he cried
To have a lock of hair;
But when, at last, he sniffed and rose,
His disappointment showing,
She said—or so we may suppose:
"Why, Abbie, are you going?"

WHEN Tommy slips his arm around
The slender waist of Kitty,
She says, "Now stop, you hugging hound!"
And scorns his plea for pity;
But just as hope deserts the boy
She flops against his breast,
And lets a tear or two of joy
Make spots upon his vest.
It's woman's wish to be pursued;
Man's coaxing must be clever;
It has been so since Eve was wooed—
It will be so forever.

Letters to the Editor

All Hail to American

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir—All hail to the American! Right well has it earned its name. It is the foremost champion of the oppressed people of the world. It knows no race, creed or color, but all mankind and creeds are its kin. Long live the American! Let there be a solemn referendum, so said the chief executive of our nation. There was, and 15,000,000 people voted to bury the League of Nations in the bottomless abyss. The League champion received the votes of all the gentry that had been appointed to lucrative berths by the apostle of small nations and the author of the immortal fourteen points.

George Washington still lives in the hearts of the American people. His sage advice, "to keep from entangling alliances and intrigues with the nations of the old world," is the beacon to guide our ship of state in this, the day of our strength and power, as when we were in our toddling clothes. We arose in our wrath and sane determination and wreaked vengeance on those who would make us pawns to be used to keep the oppressed people of the old world under the heel of France, England and Japan. Woodrow Wilson will be the last English-American that will ever hold the office of President of these United States—he was a costly experiment, but perhaps the lesson he taught us may be worth the price. England has fifty-two colonies, France twenty-seven, Japan seven and the League of Nations would hand to Japan Shantung, a tract of land larger than all New England and with a population of 40,000,000, a number greater than the United States had in 1870, five years after the Civil War.

What a triumvirate! And to them the robbed were to plead that they disgorge their ill-gotten goods.

Those who have been intrusted with the administration of Uncle Sam's affairs for the next four years have been given their mandate that they must look after Uncle Sam's interests first, last and all the time, and to Jericho with butting into the affairs of the robber nations of the old world. THOMAS F. CONNOLLY.

HERE'S A play.
IN ONE act.
AND THE scene is laid.
IN THE dining room.
OF AN apartment
IN ANY city.
AND IT'S breakfast time.
AND THE husband
IS EATING grapes.
WITH THE morning paper.
STANDING UP.
AGAINST A vase.
AND THE wife.
BRINGS IN the coffee.
AND THE eggs.
AND SITS down.
AND DOESN'T say a word.
AND POURS the coffee.
AND FIXES the eggs.
AND THEN gets up.
AND REMOVES the grapes.
AND PASSES the coffee.
AND THE eggs.
AND ALL the time.
THE HUSBAND.
KEEPS ON reading.
AND ALL at once.
HE TURNS the last page.
AND EXCLAIMS:
"WHERE'S THE second section.
"IT'S GONE again."
AND THE wife grows pale.
AND SAYS:
"I FORGOT it.
"IT'S IN the kitchen.
"I'LL GET it."
AND SHE gets it.
AND HE says:
"I DO wish
"YOU WOULDN'T disturb
"THE MORNING paper.
"UNTIL I read it."
AND HE finishes breakfast.
AND SAYS goodby.
AND GOES off stage.
AND THE wife sits there.
AND LOOKS in her coffee.
AND THE curtain goes down.

I THANK you.

"Does It Pay?"

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

IF one poor burdened toiler o'er life's road,
Who meets us by the way,
Goes on less conscious of his galling load,
Then life, indeed, does pay.

If we can show one troubled heart the gain
That lies always in loss,
Why, then, we, too, are paid for all the pain
Of bearing life's hard cross.

If some despondent soul to hope is stirred,
Some sad lip made to smile,
By any act of ours or any word,
Then life has been worth while.

BANQUETS DYING OF DESERT FEVER

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

I HAVE several dry bones to pick with Prohibition, but here and there in the arid waste produced by its dusty operations I find an oasis of great benefit.

Among other things, it is gradually killing off the public banquet, choking it of thirst. In the years to come men and women will know of a once popular American institution only through reading of it in books.

The public banquet still exists, of course, but it is getting to be a mere shadow of its former robust self. I attended one not long ago, and while it had all the form and some of the substance of the banquet of the halcyon days of its pre-prohibition prime, I noted a certain huskiness of voice and an unmistakable emaciation.

The only really familiar feature was the presence of the inevitable drunk who insisted on making audible remarks while the speakers were talking. Some men can always procure liquor, even in a desert.

I do not know who invented the public banquet, but I am under the impression that it began as soon after Creation as there were enough people in the world to furnish a toastmaster, and a couple of next speakers, at so much per plate. It thrived down through the years, reaching the apex of its affluence in America, and commenced to languish here only when Mr. Volstead took his fatal swing.

Perhaps Mr. Volstead's real animus was the public banquet. Perhaps he knew that banquets cannot live on banqueting alone.

The dreariest thing in the world, next to a banquet with liquor, is a banquet without liquor. Under the latter circumstances you know that the speeches are even duller than you used to suspect under the former circumstances.

I do not mind hearing a good speaker deliver a good speech, if he cuts it short; but so rarely have I heard a good speech at a public banquet that I have come to the conclusion that if a good speaker has a good speech he reserves it for some more auspicious occasion.

I have never yet seen a public banquet that began right on time. There is generally a wait which dulls the appetite. I have tried the experiment of manfully resisting the salted almonds, and bread and butter, and copious draughts of water, until the food came on, only to find the food very poor.

When I fill up on the almonds and what-not, and ruin my appetite, to say nothing of my digestion, the food turns out to be fine, but I am unable to eat it. Thus they get me coming and going. I always draw a seat at a table with some half-intoxicated pest with a fund of misinformation about uninteresting subjects, or with some sober pest who wants to tell me vintage tales with a vulgar touch.

At one time America had a passion for public banquets. They gave them to anybody on the slight provocation. Apparently intelligent men seemed to love to sit and hear themselves eulogized for hours by men who scarcely knew the honored guest, and from whom the honored guest couldn't have borrowed four dollars the next day had he been starving.

On one memorable occasion in New York a prominent author got up a banquet to himself. It was an expensive banquet, with expensive persons present, and while not everyone knew what it was all about, it was generally agreed that the banquet was quite a success as banquets went.

However, it was also agreed that giving a banquet to one's self was about the height of banquetorial obsession. Still, I have always held that it was no worse than letting someone else give a banquet for you.

One way and another we are paying a big price for prohibition; but if the loss of the public banquets is part of the price, I don't know but what it is worth it.

MAGICIANS FRACTURE BELIEF IN SPOOKS

ONE evening at a banquet the writer sat next to Harry Houdini. Houdini is a most interesting personage. I never saw such perfection of bodily development. His muscles are like steel. His fingers are as dextrous as a violinist's and as powerful as a stevedore's. He can operate a typewriting machine with his toes. He is also a splendid cook.

But what I was going to say is that I sat next to him once at a banquet and took occasion during our chat to ask him what he thought of spiritualism, whether he "believed" at all in spirit manifestations, thought transference and other spook stuff, and whether he had ever attended a spiritualistic seance.

Answering my last question first, he said, "Hundreds of them."

"And," he added, "I never saw one thing done by a medium, or one thing done by supposed psychic power or ghostly aid, that I cannot do by plain trickery."

Does the reader know that there is a Society of American Magicians, that this is as self-respecting a body of professionals as any medical or ecclesiastical or legal or teachers' association, that it has a nice sense of the ethics of the magician's profession, and, most important of all, and what I had in mind when I began this article, that it is the magicians today who are doing most to counteract the new wave of spookery now flooding the country?

For there is such a thing as clean hocus-pocus. It is hocus-pocus that does not claim to be anything else than hocus-pocus, smilingly offers to give you your money's worth of amusement and piques you by defying you to guess how it is done.

The great mission and message of the nineteenth century, the age of science, was to tear away the fetters of credulity from the mind by showing that there is a natural and common-sense explanation of all phenomena.

Franklin showed us how to harness the wild lightning; Laplace, Newton and others how to calculate eclipses and foretell comets, and Gorgas demonstrated that yellow fever could be done away with, not by ceremonies and sacrifices, but by killing the mosquito.

The reputable magicians of today, such as Thurston and Kellar and Nate Leipsic, are really brothers to the Pasteurs and Edisons and Kochs in the army of sanity. They fool you, but they do not make you a fool.

The audience, after witnessing a legerdemain performance, goes away with this valuable idea: "All this is trickery. I know it is. The performer himself says it is. And he has done all that spirit rappers do. Therefore, a spirit rapping must also be trickery."

And they go away with this important truth in their minds: That because I cannot see nor comprehend how a thing is done is no reason why I must accept the doer's explanation of how it is done.

Modern magicians do tricks far more baffling and mysterious than the wizards of the past ever performed. The old sorcerers half believed their own magic, for nobody is so easy to humbug as one's self.

The modern prestidigitator does better tricks, but he knows how he does them and amuses his auditors by laughingly telling them it is a trick and challenging them to guess his secret.

I have seen plants grow in a pot from a seed to a bush full of real roses in ten minutes. I saw a man's head cut off (apparently, of course) once in a show in Paris and miraculously replaced. I have seen water turned to wine and eggs crushed and again restored, and all sorts of marvels.

But because I have seen honest tricksters do these things I have not been inoculated with the dangerous fear of supernal powers, but have merely been convinced that there are persons who are far defter and cleverer than I.
